ALLIES ENTER BIZERTE AND TUNIS; AXIS DUNKIRK NEAR

Pictures Show How U. S. Forces Occupied Russell Islands

These are first pictures showing occupation of the Russell islands by American forces in February, just revealed by the United States Navy. Soldiers and marines are moving in with their equipment at the right, while photo at left shows troops unloading supplies with the aid of landing boats. Important as an advance base menacing Japan, the Russells lie only 18 miles from Guadalcanal's northwestern tip at their closest point, and 37 miles at their farthest point.

Enemy Forces Cut In Two on Tunisia Front

Many Prisoners Seized as British Advance to Within Four Miles Of Heart of Capital, Yanks Penetrate Big Naval Base.

(By United Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—British armor lunged across the rolling plains into the outskirts of Tunis today while American infantry and tanks penetrated Bizerte.

(A special communique broadcast by radio Algiers said that American troops in the north had advanced about nine miles and penetrated the suburbs of Bizerte in hard fighting while the British had taken Bardo, northwest of Tunis, and occupied the basin of Tunis harbor in fierce fighting.)

Everywhere the Germans resisted desperately to protect their line of retreat to the hills of Cap Bon, east of Tunis, but they were battered by sledge-hammer blows of a great Allied air onslaught over the whole battle front.

The Axis front in Tunisia was cut in two, with Bizerte isolated from Tunis. Enemy transport columns were falling back before Allied infantry and were being pounded furiously from the air.

Many prisoners were taken by the Allied forces as they seized the race-track at Tunis— only four miles from the heart of the city—cut up isolated enemy rearguards and pinned the remnants of a once-powerful Axis army back against the beaches of Tunis and Bizerte. The victory came just one day less than six months after the Americans and British invaded North Africa.

A "Dunkirk battle" on the beaches of Tunisia appeared imminent.

The British First army tank advance started after 8:30 a. m. today on the heights near St. Cyprien, ten miles from Tunis, and carried to the capital outskirts by noon.

Before today's gigantic offensive began, Gen. Sir Harold Alexander issued an order of the day telling his men to drive the Axis forces into the sea.

Alexander's order were for all out offensives that would give the enemy no opportunity to catch his breath and drive him back to a Dunkirk on the Mediterranean beaches.

"We have reached the final phase," he told the 18th army group. "The world's eyes are on you. Forward to victory."

Alexander's order of the day left no doubt that the Germans

U. S. Will Not Tolerate Coal Strike, Says FDR

Points Out Miners Now Employes of Government; O'Neill Insists Pay Demands Mean Huge Cost Boost.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt made it plain at a press conference today that the government does not expect, nor will it tolerate, any new work stoppage in the coal mines, because the miners now are employes of the federal government.

Under questioning, the president said that he regarded the coal miners as government employes. He added that in his many years of government service, he could not recall any strike by federal employes against their government.

Mr Roosevelt was asked whether the government would continue operation of the mines until a new contract between the operators and John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers, was signed and peace definitely restored in the coal field.

Mr. Roosevelt replied that he had never heard anyone suggest it would not do so.

Mr. Roosevelt twice advised correspondents to discount reports that the war labor board, through Economic Director James F. Byrnes, had expressed to the White House a strong desire to deviate from the "little steel" formula for wage stabilization.

Meanwhile, Charles O'Neill spokesman for the Northern Appalachian bituminous operators

STARTS JUNE 1

Ohio Liquor Ration Schedule Set; Sales Stop May 17.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Liquor rationing in Ohio will begin June 1 and sales of liquor will be halted for a two weeks' period in all retail stores from May 17 until rationing begins, State Liquor Director Don A. Fisher said today

Persons whose mailed application blanks are postmarked not later than Monday, May 10, will be eligible to participate in the first ration period, Fisher said.

Applications are available at all stores, but must be obtained by registrants at the store in the zone in which they live. Ration books will be issued on an alphabetical basis beginning Monday, May 17—the first day when stores will be closed.

Attorney General Says UMW Chief Gives Comfort to Enemy.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The Association of State Attorneys General has offered the administration its cooperation in dealing with any emergency which might arise in the coal situation.

Attorney General J. Tom Watson of Florida, before leaving for home last night, said that he personally believes John L. Lewis, United Mines Workers chief, has "given aid and comfort to the enemy" and should be prosecuted.

1,000 TO WATCH AWARDING OF 'E'

Army, Navy Officials Here For Ceremony This Afternoon at Hughes-Keenan Plant.

Nearly 1,000 persons were expected to witness the awarding of the Army-Navy "E" flag and pins to executives and employes of the Hughes-Keenan company this afternoon in the first ceremony of its kind in Mansfield

Although overcast skies and intermittent showers threatened to force holding the ceremonies indoors, company officials hoped that it would be possible to stage the 32-minute program in front of the Hughes-Keenan plant, beginning at 4:30 p. m.

Pictures and stories concerning the Army-Navy "E" award at the Hughes-Keenan plant together with congratulations from other industries appear in today's News-Journal starting on page 11.

One of Mansfield's smaller industries, the firm won the "E" award for quality production of Roustabout cranes which are used by the army and navy at posts all over the world.

4TH GAS PANEL MEMBER NAMED

Ernest Wessen Appointed To Rationing Body.

Enlargement of the gasoline panel of the local war price and rationing board was announced today with the appointment of Ernest Wessen, Mansfield business man, and indication that a fifth member may be named soon.

Other members of the panel include: W. J. Spreng, chairman; Attorney Lydon H. Beam and William Althouse.

Panel members asked today that motorists with "B" and "C" ration cards have their second tire inspection within the next 10 days instead of waiting until the end of the 60-day period allowed.

OPPOSE HOUSE TAX PROPOSAL

Senate Committeemen Want Modified Version of Carlson-Ruml Plan.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The senate finance committee, unanimously agreed that the house-approved pay-as-you-go tax bill is unsatisfactory, today is preparing a modified version of the Carlson-Ruml plan.

Representatives of the treasury department, although still vigorously opposing the Carlson-Ruml bill, were called upon today to suggest methods of closing certain "loopholes" in the skip-a-year and anti-windfall provisions.

At least five of the committee's 12 Democratic members appeared ready to join the eight Republican members in favoring a modified Carlson-Ruml bill when the committee gets around to voting on the subject, possibly tomorrow. They were Sens. David I. Walsh, D., Mass.; Scott W. Lucas, D. Ill., George Radcliffe, D., Md., Peter G Gerry, R., R. I., and Bennett C Clark, D., Mo.

SOLDIERS HELD

Caught Siphoning 'Gas' From Truck, Sheriff Reports.

MILLERSBURG—Four soldiers, captured following an attempt to siphon gasoline from a truck south of Millersburg yesterday will be taken to Columbus Saturday and turned over to military authorities, Holmes county Sheriff Harry Weiss said today.

Two of the men were captured by the sheriff early yesterday at Monroe's filling station. The other two fled, one taken into custody later in the day by Weiss and Marshal Frank Manley in a swamp south of the village. The other one was picked up on a Killbuck street yesterday evening.

The soldiers, whom the sheriff said admitted escaping from a guardhouse at Shenango, Pa., had in their possession a stolen automobile.

TEN INJURED

CANTON—(INS)—Ten persons today were recovering from injuries suffered when a city bus and three automobiles collided at a downtown intersection. None were seriously injured.

Survey Gives City Surplus of $633,186

Ohio C. of C. Report Urges Tax Reduction Or Suspension of Service Charges; City Officials Defend Set-Up.

Disclosure that the city of Mansfield has a $633,186 surplus drew both sharp criticism and strong support last night when a detailed report on an exhaustive survey of Mansfield's financial picture was laid before city officials and civic leaders.

Tax reductions, temporary suspension of water, sewer and garbage service charges were suggested as one means of dealing with the surplus, while in contrast to this, there was strong sentiment in favor of saving the surplus to finance major improvements in the post-war period.

The 82-page report covering all financial aspects of city government was compiled by the research department of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce. Two researchers spent two weeks in Mansfield assembling the data.

The C. of C. report recommended the reduction in taxes, declaring "a tax reduction for the city of Mansfield is long overdue." It recommended the suspension of sewer and water rental charges for the last half of 1943, and called for a reduction in fees for garbage service.

"Nothing has been done in the past year to reduce city taxes ex-

PLAN ONE-DAY CITY CLEAN-UP

City, C. of C. Think Salvage Campaigns Will Make Job an Easier One.

Mansfield's annual spring clean-up campaign will be confined to one day, Wednesday, May 19, when city trucks will cover all six wards, it was announced today.

The one-day drive was decided upon by city officials and the Chamber of Commerce clean-up and fire prevention committee because there is expected to be considerably less trash to pick up this year following a series of salvage campaigns. In past years, the drive has been extended over a week.

During the week of the drive, the Chamber of Commerce will distribute 3,500 fire inspection blanks to grade pupils in the city's schools for the children to take home to their parents.

The blanks seek information about possible fire hazards in homes, including inflammable materials, ashes in paper boxes, de-

Band Concert Tonight Brings Music Week to Grand Finale

The weatherman being willing, Mansfield's national music week celebration will come to a climax this evening with an outdoor band concert in Central park featuring the Mansfield Senior high band directed by J. Merton Holcombe, the American Legion Drum Corps led by Lee Walcott, and the Westinghouse Local 711 band directed by Frank Dekrell.

With this evening's concert the largest and most varied musical presentation ever seen in Mansfield will close. Headed by Mrs. Edith Fletcher Jameson, a committe composed of Miss Florence MacDonald, president of the Music Study club, Mrs. Marie Porterfield, Mrs. Herman Clingan and Mrs. G. J. Searle planned and made possible this music festival.

A unique feature of the music week has been a group singing period following each of the hour concerts. The audience, led in singing by Charles Conklin, John Grabler, and Lemoine Derr has given an enthusiastic response to these song fests.

Opening the band concert tonight at 8 p. m. the American

48-HOUR WEEK LOOMS FOR ALL

WMC Considers Nation-Wide Move To Meet Shortage of Manpower.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The growing manpower shortage and need for increased production may lead war manpower officials to order a 48-hour minimum work week throughout the nation.

The feasibility of such an order, WMC officials told an informal press conference late yesterday, depends largely on the number of exemptions which might be necessary. If too many exemptions are necessary, the plan would be abandoned and the current policy of applying it to specific areas and industries would be continued.

If War Manpower Chief Paul V. McNutt decides to apply it nationwide, there would be a substantial increase in the national income. Workers covered by the federal wage-hour law would be getting time and a half for hours worked beyond 40. To those working only 40 hours now, it would represent a 30 per cent increase in earnings.

When President Roosevelt issued an executive order in February for a 48-hour week, Economic Stabilization Director James F. Byrnes contended that money paid for overtime was not inflationary. Thus far, the order has been applied to only 39 local areas.

Henderson Gets Job Explaining Government Regulations.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Leon Henderson who resigned under congressional fire last winter as price administrator a job in which he imposed regulations on business, will become chairman of the board of editors of the Research Institute of America May 10, a job in which he will interpret government regulations for business.

The institute, which represents 35,000 businesses including giant corporations and small enterprises, announced Henderson's affiliation yesterday but did not reveal what salary he would draw. From the government he received $12,000 yearly.

TALK TOO MUCH, SENT TO JAIL

British Government Acts Against Disclosures.

LONDON—(U.P.)—The British government warning against careless talk, revealed today that a number of soldiers had been cashiered or jailed for disclosing military information.

One case included in a published digest was that of a senior officer, broken and sent up for a year because he gossiped to a dinner friend about a second front.

Another soldier who arranged a code with his wife to let her know where he'd be stationed, drew a six-month sentence.

ALLIED SHIP SUNK

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The navy reported today that a small Norwegian merchant vessel was torpedoed and sunk by an enemy submarine in mid-Atlantic early in March. Survivors have landed at Philadelphia.

Gable Mans Gun On U. S. Air Raid Over Belgian City

LONDON—(INS)—Film Idol Clark Gable, now a captain in the United States air force, was revealed today to have participated in the recent heavy American raid on factory areas of Nazi-held Antwerp, Belgium

The disclosure came from crew members of the Flying Fortress named "Eight Ball" and aboard which Gable rode to the attack.

The fortress crew, now on leave in London, said that Gable "guest manned" a gun position in the radio compartment and fired numerous rounds at attacking Focke-Wulf 190s.

"Gable is a real guy and means business," the crew said, adding that the film star showed no signs of nervousness during the raid

"Here they come and here they go," they quoted Gable as declaring at the approach of the Nazi Focke-Wulfs. He blasted away at them with a .50 caliber gun.

The crew and Gable all were disappointed that the actor was unable to down one of the enemy craft circling their ship. They said they hope to have Gable on another trip as the star of their ship.

SPIES: Reds Charge Poles In Russia With Espionage System

(By United Press)

MOSCOW—Deputy Foreign Commissar Andrei J. Vishinsky charged the Polish exile government today with spying on the Soviet Union through a system of relief offices and said Poles guilty of espionage, including diplomats and high-ranking military officers, had been punished or expelled from Russia

He also accused the Poles of failing to send an army to the Soviet-German front under a 1941 agreement. Officers responsible for evacuating Polish citizens from the Soviet, he said, had been used as a gigantic network for "intelligence work and espionage."

Among officers expelled was Gen Romuald Wolikowski, former head of the Polish military mission to Russia

Vishinsky also attacked Polish claims to part of the western Ukraine and White Russia, charging the Polish government refused to recognize Soviet attempts to grant Polish citizenship to the population of those territories and forced the Soviet to cancel the arrangements.

Many have been tried and punished or expelled from Russia, Vishinsky told Anglo-American newspaper correspondents at a press conference. Among those expelled, he said, was Gen. Romuald Wolikowski, former head of the Polish military mission to Russia and one who played an "important part in . . . espionage work in the USSR."

Vishinsky's statement came only 24 hours after publication of

TOLL: Japs Sink Five Allied Cargo Ships East of Australia

(By International News Service)

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA—The extent of recent Japanese attempts to disrupt the Allied life-line between the United States and Australia through submarine attacks "in force" was revealed today in a communique announcing the sinking of five United Nations cargo vessels in waters east of Australia.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur disclosed in his daily communique that one medium-sized American freighter, one large and two small Australian merchantmen and a small Norwegian freighter were sunk by Jap submarines.

Emphasizing that the new assault by Jap undersea craft should cause no undue alarm, Gen. MacArthur declared:

"Our shipping continues to operate in virtually undiminished volume under protection by our naval and aircraft units."

(South Pacific headquarters of Admiral William F. Halsey declared yesterday that United States submarines are inflicting tremendous losses on Japanese shipping. At the same time Jap claims to sinking 50,000 tons of Allied supply ships in nine days was branded "a flat lie.")

Gen MacArthur's communique reported devastating new aerial assaults against Jap bases north of Australia. The principal attack was made on the Nipponese air base in the Aru islands, between Australia and Dutch New Guinea. Several other blows were made on points in New Guinea and New Britain.

A formation of Australian Beaufighter long-range planes took the Japs completely by surprise in a dawn raid yesterday on the enemy-held air base at Taberfane, in the Arus. Nine float planes on the beach were destroyed, a lugger offshore loaded with troops was sunk, and fuel installations on the beach and in camp areas were strafed with cannon and machine gun fire.

Heavy destruction also was wrought on the enemy base at Manokwari, Dutch New Guinea, by Allied planes in a daylight attack. Their bombs set off large explosives and numerous fires from which smoke rose 8,000 feet.

HUGHES-KEENAN PLANT STARTED AS PARTNERSHIP

Big Roustabout Cranes Far Cry From Days When It Only Did Repair Jobs.

The plant receiving Mansfield's first Army-Navy "E" award today grew out of a partnership organization formed in 1904, which advanced into a corporation in 1909 and has shown a good record of progress since.

Like most industries, it went through trying days during the depression year of 1933 but weathered them successfully. Its expansion program currently being completed and its production record earning the coveted army-navy honor attest to that.

In sharp contrast to the big Roustabout cranes it now manufactures for the war effort, the plant's operations in its early days were confined largely to the repair of boilers and tanks.

Later it took up the production of fire escapes, ornamental iron work, such as railings for bridges and buildings, and then produced pressed steel stairs to replace wooden stairs in schools, office buildings and other structures.

It was among the first companies in this area manufacturing such stairs. Nearly all Mansfield schools, office buildings, factories and theaters are equipped with them.

Hughes-Keenan stairs can be found in buildings as far west as Iowa, east to the New England states and south to Florida and Texas.

Large-scale manufacture of steel stairs continued until the war emergency resulted . . the company concentrating on Roustabout cranes.

Since the production of steel stairs and ornamental iron work was confined to certain times of the year, the company began the manufacture of steel dump bodies and hoists for all makes of trucks about 1925, and also developed the "Iron Mule," a dump body mounted on standard industrial tractors and used for hauling dirt and miscellaneous material on road construction. The name "Iron Mule" is widely known nd this equipment was used on many large road construction projects in the far west and south, as well as throughout this ection.

As taken from company records, here in brief, is the history of the organization:

It was founded in 1904 as a partnership between Arthur S. Hughes and Thomas Keenan, both of them having been formerly connected with the boiler erecting department of the Aultman-Taylor company, Mansfield. The Hughes-Keenan company was incorporated under the laws of Ohio in 1909. Keenan left the com any shortly after it was incorporated and Hughes continued as president and general manager until the time of his death in November, 1938.

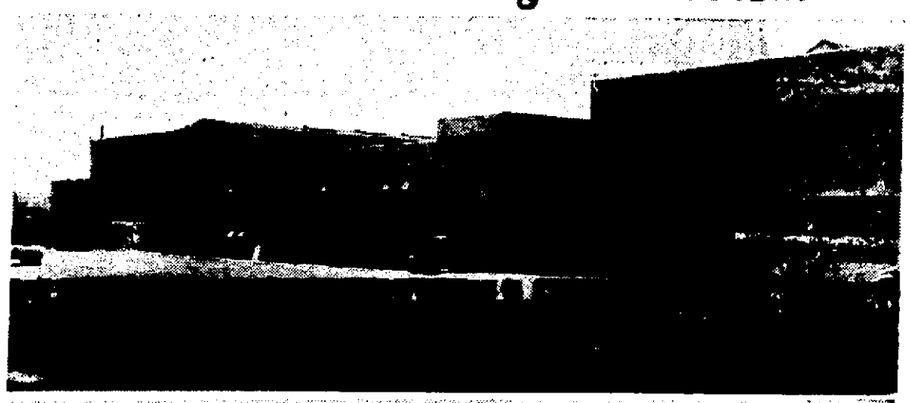
The company was originally located in a small building at the rear of 26 West Sixth street. Expansion became necessary and in 1921 the company moved into a new plant on the site of what was known as the Mansfield ball park at the intersection of Wayne and Newman streets.

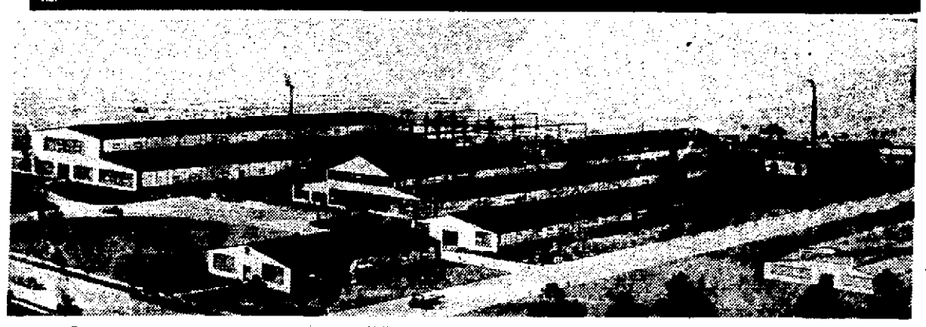
As a result of a general business depression the company entered into a friendly receivership in June, 1933, to conserve its assets. Its operations were continued until new capital and personnel were interested and the company was re-organized under the original charter and name in March, 1940. All of the old organization was retained.

The demand for crane equipment by the armed forces required a further expansion and a new building between two existing buildings was started in August, 1942. It now is being completed and placed in service. This building will add about 20,000 square feet of additional manufacturing space and also house the new offices of the company. It will greatly assist in k eping up with the heavy crane delivery schedules required by present demands.

For the future, company officials say that present contracts will carry through this year and into 1944, with every assurance for continued demand for the company's products during the coming year. The company is looking forward to the period after the present emergency and making its plans for continued operation on a large scale after the emergency is over.

Old and New Buildings of H-K Plant





The Hughes-Keenan company as it now looks and as it appeared before the beginning of the expansion program last August is shown in the above pictures. The expansion program, nearing completion, includes a yellow brick front for the two old buildings shown at the extreme left and center of the lower picture. Between the buildings, a new office section has been constructed making the plant all one unit. With only a few inside finishing details incomplete, the building will be open for public examination today at the Army-Navy "E" award ceremonies. In the photos below are Major W. B. McClelland, representing the army, and Lieut. Comdr. A. E. Heiser, representing the navy, at the Army-Navy "E" presentation ceremonies today.

EXPANSION AT HUGHES-KEENAN IN FINAL STAGE

$100,000 Addition Ready For Partial Inspection During Army-Navy Program.

Renovations and additions to the buildings of the Hughes-Keenan plant, a part of the $100,000 improvement program begun last August, are rapidly nearing stages of completion.

Although unfinished, part of the new structures were in condition to permit inspection by guests at the Army-Navy "E" presentation today.

New equipment and furnishings will be installed within the next few months.

Two existing frame buildings have been renovated with an entirely new and larger section built between them to form a large unit, with a new brick front spanning the entire structure. Charles Conklin was the architect who drew the plans utilizing the old buildings.

Location of some of the machinery in the plant will be changed when the new section is finished to facilitate production and provide a large storage space. The new section, of frame construction with the exception of the brick front, has saw-tooth construction skylights and fluorescent lighting, which will also be installed in the remainder of the shop. The new addition will add approximately 19,000 square feet of working space.

The upstairs of the new middle section will house the business offices of the concern. They are now located in a ramshackle frame structure which will be converted to other use, company officials said.

The office suites are of the most modern construction and will be equipped with modernistic furniture. There will be private rooms for company officials opening off a central hall, a large board of directors room, tile washrooms for men and women and a reception center.

P. J. Zeiher is the general contractor.

BOSSES JUMPERS

WEYMOUTH, Mass. — (U.P.) — A veteran sky-jumper and woman balloonist — with more than 500 leaps to her credit—is the chief parachute repairer at the navy's South Weymouth lighter-than-air station.

Slight, gray-haired, 60-year-old Mrs. Joseph M. Haddock made her first leap in 1905 when 'chutes were being made of cotton and aerial barnstormers were the feature of county fairs.

The U. S. could add two million women a year for 10 years to war production lines from today's reserve of womanpower.

BELL REPLACED

GALESBURG, Ill. —(U.P.)— The traditional college bell calling students to classes is out for the duration, at least as far as Monmouth college here is concerned.

A navy flight preparatory school was established on the campus not long ago and many students had to move—some of them so far away that they couldn't hear the bell.

The faculty found a solution. Today a business-like whistle toots out the hours as tradition gives way before wartime efficiency.

SECOND CHAPLAIN QUALIFIES AS PARACHUTE 'SKY PILOT'

(By International News Service)

FORT BENNING, Ga.—Fort Benning's 505th Parachute Infantry now boasts of two qualified jumping chaplains.

Newest jumping "sky pilot" of the 505th is Lieut. Matthew Connelly of Denver, Colo., the Catholic chaplain, who was in training at the same time as the Infantry's other jumping chaplain, Lieut. George B. Wood, Episcopalian, but was injured.

The Public Relations Office of the 505th announced that Lieut. Connelly has finally completed his necessary five jumps to qualify as a jumping chaplain.

Lieut. Connelly was ordained a priest at Holy Cross Abbey, the Monastery near Canon City, Colo., in 1934. He did parish work in Boulder, Colo., and served in the army at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., and at Camp Shelby, Miss., prior to coming to Fort Benning.

On his second jump Lieut. Connelly sustained a knee injury, and was only adjudged medically fit to continue his jumping qualifications after considerable rest. He volunteered for parachute duty last Aug. 13.

FORGETS BOOK

CLEVELAND — (U.P.) — Birkett L. Williams, regional OPA director, has been a very busy man, occupied with the distribution of thousands of No. 2 ration books in recent days.

With so much on his mind, Williams forgot—of all things—to get his own No. 2 book, so now he had to stand in line, with other forgetful citizens, at his local rationing board.

NEW METHOD

AUSTIN, Tex. — (U.P.) — Even if you did "bust" geometry in school, there's a way you can come through now with flying colors.

The only equipment needed is a rule, compass and a supply of paper, says Miss Edna McCormick, who has written her method for the Interscholastic Leaguer, monthly public school newspaper published by the University of Texas.

Miss McCormick's method consists of actually putting the geometric figures together on paper so that the solution can be easily seen and understood.

IGNORES SAFE FOR COFFEE

BINGHAMTON, N. Y.—(U.P.)— Even a burglar's sense of values has changed in these parlous times. An intruder broke into a store here and made off with 80 pounds of coffee. He passed up the safe.

MAKE 2ND HAUL

ORLANDO, Fla.—(U.P.)— Gerald Van Scoy, who operates a liquor store near here, is firmly convinced that there's no truth in the adage that lightning never strikes twice in the same place.

One night two bandits appeared at his store and left with $205. Twelve days later they returned, greeting Van Scoy with:

"Well, pal, here we are again."

This time they got $75 in cash.

ARMY-NAVY 'E' PRESENTED TO OLDEST EMPLOYE

J. S. Gerhart, 70, One of Two Receiving Coveted Honor In Behalf of Plant.

When Major W. B. McClelland of the Cleveland ordnance district presents the Army-Navy "E" flag to the Hughes-Keenan company today, the award will be received by J. S. Gerhart who at 70 is the oldest employe of the plant and one of the oldest in years of service.

Gerhart, receiving the award jointly with Miss Marie Jacot, company secretary, came to the Hughes-Keenan plant late in 1909. Experienced in structural and ornamental steel work, his first construction job was at the F. E Myers Bros. company at Ashland.

He next became associated with the sales department, and was "on the road" for 25 years. He's in the maintenance department now, a job not new to Gerhart. In the plant's early days he would come in from his selling trips and help with the maintenance work.

Among the many jobs which he has done at the Hughes-Keenan plant, Gerhart lists installing the first set of steel stairs in Ohio. When a building needed to be moved, Gerhart went to Newport, Ky., to help tear down, move and reconstruct the building into the No. 2 building at the plant, here. The coming of the war and the change to defense work necessitated the changing of some of the machinery and much of this work fell to him.

Gerhart is a baseball enthusiast and several members of the old Mansfield Braves roomed at his home at 116 Pleasant avenue. He has two daughters and two sons, all married and away from home, and two grandsons in the service. He came to Mansfield in 1884 from Cumberland county, Pennsylvania.

Receives Hughes-Keenan 'E'

J. S. Gerhart, above, who at 70 is the oldest employe of the Hughes-Keenan plant, will receive the Army-Navy "E" flag at the presentation today. He will receive the award jointly with Miss Marie Jacot, company secretary.

Plates of 1,500 Books to Make Tons of Scrap

PHILADELPHIA — (U.P.) — Words, from aardvark to zymurgy, will write out a message containing nothing but bad news for Hitler and Hirohito in the near future.

The words, engraved on plates of steel, lead, copper and zinc, will be converted into bombs and shells to bring a message to the Axis leaders in the only language they understand, death and destruction.

Through the salvage efforts of the J. B. Lippincott company, a Philadelphia publishing firm celebrating its 150th anniversary, the plates of some 1,500 books will be turned over to the government for conversion into the sinews of war.

S. Austin Allibone, when he wrote his Dictionary of English Literature in the early 1800's probably never dreamed that, a hundred years later, his scholarly words would scream out of the skies with a message of death — but the copper plates of his book are going into shells.

JAPS INTERNED IN UTAH CITY

Relocation Center Houses 8,500 Nipponese From California.

(By International News Service)

TOPAZ, Utah—Only a year ago historic Pahvant Valley, which lies 165 miles southwest of Salt Lake City, was used for winter pasturage for flocks of sheep.

Then Topaz was born — built by the United States Army to house Japanese evacuees from the Pacific Coast. Today the community ranks sixth in size in the state, with a Japanese population of 8,500.

The valley, located near the Confusion mountains, had been classed as unproductive but was selected as a relocation center when population areas protested against Japanese infiltration.

Late last summer 500 one-story barracks had been built and on Sept. 10 the first Japanese moved in. A month later a new city had been established.

Most of the population came from the bay district of California with the result that only 7 per cent of the settlers had been engaged in agriculture.

Among them is a university art professor, doctors, dentists, a nurseryman and prosperous San Francisco Chinatown merchants.

Topaz is affected by the contingencies of war, like the rest of America. The community faces shortages every day. It consumes about 17,000 pounds of meat a week or about two pounds per person. Rice is the major food. There are meatless days and days with few vegetables, but always enough to eat.

Japanese who have no means can obtain jobs at the rate of $12, $16, and $19 a month. Thirty-five mess halls must be maintained, the community must be kept clean, a 175-bed hospital must be staffed and 700 acres of fair farming land must be made to produce a good part of the food that will be consumed in the camp next year.

GETS LETTERS

AUSTIN, Tex.—(U.P.)—Added significance was given to the University of Texas' part in celebrating the centennial anniversary of Sidney Lanier when six of the poet's unpublished original letters were given to the school's rare book collection. The letters were donated by H. J. Lutcher Stark, regent.

Stark acquired the letters from W. S. James of Abilene, Tex., nephew of Col John Garland James, who carried on a correspondence with Lanier about writing a textbook.

SERVICE RECORD LONGEST AT H-K

Oscar F. Schaller, Treasurer Now, Started With Plant Back In Early Days.

Oscar F. Schaller, treasurer and purchasing agent of the Hughes-Keenan company who with 180 others at the plant will receive an Army-Navy "E" button today, can remember the plant's early days 34 years ago when the ten employes doubled on estimating jobs, getting the material and producing the goods.

In 1909, just five years after founding of the company, Schaller became a timekeeper at Hughes-Keenan, and is the oldest employe from point of service. The plant then was located at the rear of 26 West Sixth street and employed less than a dozen men. It had just been incorporated and was getting away from repair work and into structural steel work.

"There was no separate office then and I did everything in the way of general office work, even did some estimating of jobs before we got an engineering department," Schaller reminisced.

During the time the plant was on Sixth street and after an office was set up on Mulberry, Schaller did bookkeeping, collecting, and any job he was called on to do.

With Company for 34 Years

To Oscar F. Schaller, treasurer and purchasing agent of the Hughes-Keenan company, one of the highlights of his 34 years with the company will be the receiving of his Army-Navy "E" button this afternoon. Schaller came to Hughes-Keenan in 1909, five years after the company was formed. He has served in many capacities from timekeeper to treasurer.

He remembers that as the staff grew each new employe would take over one of the jobs he had been doing and he would go on to something new. That's the way he "grew into" the position of purchasing agent which he had when the company moved to its present location on Newman street. That was in 1921 and he's still working at that job.

As purchasing agent, it has been Schaller's job to get the material to the plant to be used in manufacturing. In war time, that's no easy job with priorities and such problems as material shortages to cope with.

But keeping the purchasing department running smoothly was Schaller's contribution toward the effort which won the plant the Army-Navy "E."

Schaller became treasurer of the company in 1941.

Schaller is a native of Mansfield and makes his home at 274 South Mulberry street.

Timber is provided by two great classes of trees, conifers, the soft woods, and dicotyledons, the hardwoods.

'ROUSTABOUTS' DOING BIG JOB ON WAR FRONTS

Hughes-Keenan Cranes Go To Far Corners of Earth To Help Victory Drive.

The lumbering Roustabout crane, which won the Army-Navy "E" award for the Hughes-Keenan company, has carried the Mansfield's firm's name to every part of the world where American forces have established bases.

The big machines are lifting building materials and army and navy equipment in North Africa, the Southwest Pacific, India, and in other far corners of the world from which the Yanks may launch their victory drive.

The Roustabout has been a Hughes-Keenan trade name only since 1930, but the firm has built cranes for the past 17 years. In 1931, the army purchased its first Roustabout and since then the government has been buying an increasing number of the big lifting devices.

Now, the entire output of the company is going into government use, either directly to the army and navy or to other firms which are producing for the war program. Production of Roustabouts was started on a large scale in 1941.

W. E. Post, vice president and general manager of the Hughes-Keenan company, said most of the cranes probably are used primarily at air force supply depots. The huge machines, which have been known to lift up to 27,000 pounds, put heavy building materials in place, move bomber parts, and sometimes help to drag heavy army equipment out of the mud.

Roustabouts models vary in lifting capacity from two to seven tons, but they can lift a bigger load than that. The Mansfield firm manufactures only the lifting mechanism of the crane. The company mounts the cranes on caterpillar-type tractors or industrial wheel chassis equipped with rubber tires and ships the complete unit from Mansfield.

Working with the Hughes-Keenan firm in the production of the unit are the International Harvester company, J. I. Case company and Allis-Chalmers. They make the chassis and motors.

Before the Hughes-Keenan company began making industrial cranes, the firm turned out ornamental fence, boiler equipment, structural steel equipment, and dump bodies for trucks. The portable crane proved so popular, however, that production gradually turned away from other lines until the cranes made up the total output of the company.

PERMIT SLACKS IN COLLEGE

TROY, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Russell Sage college girls have their own solution to the fuel oil heating problem. The college legislative council has O. K'd a plan whereby the girls will be permitted to wear woolen slacks and ski pants on the campus and in class.

Executives of Hughes-Keenan Company

Executives of the Hughes-Keenan company which Mansfield honors today for its contribution to the war effort share with their employes the credit for bringing Mansfield its first Army-Navy "E" award. Pictured above are: 1—W. E. Post, vice president and general manager; 2—O. F. Schaller, treasurer; 3—G. W. Way, president; 4—W. L. Oswalt, resident army inspector of ordnance at the plant and a captain in the 97th ordnance unit in the first World war; 5—Miss Marie Jacot, secretary; 6—H. J. Nelson, factory manager.

HIKE SALES

BUCYRUS—Increasing their efforts during the second Victory loan drive, Bucyrus school pupils sold stamps and bonds totaling $28,551.70 during the three weeks period from April 12 to 30th, Supt. D. C. Baer reported today.

Total sale of bonds for the year now stands at $46,280.80.

Kalbfleisch Presides Over Army-Navy 'E' Presentation

Master of ceremonies at this afternoon's ceremonies at the Hughes-Keenan company plant, when the company and employes were to be awarded the Army-Navy "E" for production was Common Pleas Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch.

Kalbfleisch also holds the post of co-ordinator of civilian defense for both Mansfield and Richland county.

He moved to the common pleas bench early this year from municipal court, where he had served two terms. He was also formerly county prosecutor.

In his capacity of civilian defense co-ordinator, Kalbfleisch has directed the CD organization since its inception.

He was to preside over this afternoon's ceremonies and introduce the speakers.

SOLDIERS TRY IRISH DANCES

Then They Show Gay Colleens The American Way to Trip Fantastic.

(By International News Service)

LONDONDERRY—New dances for old Irish steps in exchange for American "square" dances. A novel sort of British-American lease-lend in a light fantastic setting.

That is the latest hospitality craze at the American Red Cross Service Club, Londonderry, where "give and get" dance classes are flourishing with the slogan "fair exchange is no robbery"—and the prospect of piles of fun.

Two Pennsylvania women thought up the idea—Miss Sylvia Derr, program director, and Miss Helen Cantrell, social director, and the G.Is. and their colleens are putting plenty of pep into their practices.

While the colleens are learning to "swing on your partner like swinging on a gate" the Yanks are attempting the intricacies of Irish reels, hornpipes, jigs and set-dances. The club's fine dance hall looks like a "hooley" in an Irish kitchen when the lads and lassies get going heel-and-toe.

To help her learners along Miss Deer has "figured out" both the American and Irish dances on special cards with the instructions for steps set in the form of verses to the air of current song hits, which the dancers can lilt or sing as they "circle" and "chain," "swing" and "reel" on the arms of their partners.

By turn American soldiers, sailors and marines teach their Irish girls "Dosey Do" and "Birdie in the Cage" and are taught by the girls the steps that go with the lilt of "The Pride of Erin" or the rollicking tunes for "The Lancers."

Boys and girls took it all in the day's play and in next to no time were swinging through the unfamiliar steps as if colleens had all their lives "hit him on the wing with an elbow swing" or Yanks had pivoted to the strains of "The Irish Washerwoman."

It is not only hands-across-sea but also feet-across-the-sea at Londonderry now. Soon they'll all be experts up at the base for the lease-lend dancing classes are to continue every Sunday—at least until Miss Derr has made her dancers thoroughly "international."

The name of Alaska was derived from an Aleut word meaning "great country."

WARNS AGAINST 'BARGAIN' GIFTS TO SERVICEMEN

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — (U.P.)— Jewelry racketeers are finding a rich harvest among wartime brides and grooms and the gift-buying relatives of men in the armed services, the family economies bureau of the Northwestern National Life Insurance company warned today.

"Relatives buy gift watches that are soon thousands of miles away on the wrists of soldiers or sailors," the bureau reported, "and although the watch is a poor one, there is little chance of its coming back to the seller.

"Nothing is easier to fool the public on than diamonds and watches. A sharper can easily misrepresent shoddy goods and 'out-promise' the honest jeweler who stands behind his merchandise."

The bureau warned against the "perfect blue-write" stone or watch offered by an unknown dealer or salesman.

WINS PROMOTION

SAN DIEGO, Cal.—(U.P.)—Sgt. James Jolly Plum Duff, Marine base bulldog mascot, celebrated his sixth birthday by being promoted to the rank of platoon sergeant.

A cake was baked for the occasion with six wieners instead of candles. Duff was presented to the Marines several years ago by Mr. and Mrs. Frederick James of Philadelphia.

STILL PRIVATE

FORT MYERS, Fla.—(U.P.)— When Bernard Galkin was a civilian he wrote a book telling how to get a rating or a commission in the army, navy, marines, coast guard and merchant marine. It sold more than 75,000 copies.

Glakin has been in the army several months now and he's still waiting to be promoted from private. He is stationed at the Army Air Forces Flexible Gunnery school here.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

The state Moose bowling tournament has been over this long time, the Inter-City tournament has been over this short time, the state JAC tournament has been concluded a brief time, but the bowling tournament season won't be over for some time.

Does this all make sense to you?

Well, don't let it throw you.

The answer will come to you, all in good time. In fact now is as good a time as anytime. And ain't we havin' a fine time, chumsies?

Here's the answer to all this tomfoolery. The Colony second annual singles and doubles tournament, bringing to Mansfield some of the best kegling talent in northern and central Ohio, gets under way tomorrow night at the West Third street beds, and continues for two weekends.

But don't get all wound up for a lot of excitement on opening night, which will see just one team, from Medina, on the alleys. The real action starts Sunday.

Last year, under nearly ideal conditions, the young tournament drew 41 doubles entries. This war-time tourney already has 45 entries, and they may go as high as 75 with more accepted at the alleys during the joust.

Sunday's kegling, starting at 3 p. m., will find teams from Columbus, Mt. Vernon, Newark, Mansfield and Findlay on the lanes.

The Mansfielders will include the Bissman Birdie Brands and the Orlie Grable-Carl Phillipon combination which finished third a year ago.

And from Findlay will come former Mansfielder Leland Stock and ex-Bucyrian Walter Wellman.

Buddy Suchan, outstanding Cleveland bowler, will bring three teams on May 15, and Shelby also is scheduled for that Saturday night at 10 p. m. that night there will be five Cleveland teams, including Johnny Ilchak, one of Cleveland's better bowlers.

Ten teams from Columbus, Cleveland, Shelby, Canton and Findlay take the lanes on the closing Sunday afternoon. Among them will be the Earl Linsz Recreations of Cleveland, winners of $5,000 in the recent Petersen classic in Chicago.

At 7 o'clock that night there will be eight teams from Cleveland, Canton, Fostoria, Bowling Green and at 9 p. m. teams from Lorain, Wooster and Wadsworth

Alex Black and Johnny Klares of Lorain, winners of last year's doubles tournament, roll at 9 p. m. May 16. So will Rohn's Cafe from Wadsworth, winners of the Inter-City 5-man event.

Lou Schmidt, Wooster star, was scheduled for the first week-end, but has asked that he be given a week's vacation.

Seems a guy has been pestering him all winter for a 25-game match, and they finally rolled it off this week.

"I won," reports Lou, "but my thumb is as big as a grapefruit."

British to See American Football

LONDON—(AP)—Excited Yankee soldiers today gave staid old London the atmosphere of an American college football town as two army elevens prepared for the "G. I. Bowl" gridiron game tomorrow.

The "Crimson Tide" team is piloted by Second Lieut. Ed Keyon of Fall River, Mass.

Keyon has named a tentative starting backfield of Pvt. John Henry from Punxsutawney, Pa.; Sgt. Ariton Verbeck from Gilbert, Minn.; Corp. Albert Bashnett from Tioga, W. Va., and 155-pound quarterback Sgt. Paul Dennix from Harrisburg, Pa.

Coached by Capt. Tom Nurnburger from Iroon River, Mich., the "Fighting Irish" will bank on Michigan's old pass, punt and prayer system. Nurnburger has chosen a starting backfield of Staff Sgt. Ray Anders, Carney, Mich.; Corp. Carl Chabowski, Cleveland; Pfc. Joseph Valentino from Cleveland and Pvt. Ernest Passamoni, Iron River.

NOVIKOFF PLACED ON INELIGIBLE LIST

CHICAGO—(AP)—Lou Novikoff, the Chicago Cubs .300 hitter last year, moved farther back into the doghouse today after Ford Frick, president of the National league, placed him on baseball's ineligible list.

Indians Bunch Base Hits

Fatten Batting Marks In Victory Over Sox.

ST. LOUIS —(AP)— If yesterday's game with the Chicago White Sox is any indication, the Cleveland Indians are acquiring the ability to bunch base hits.

The Redskins concentrated eight of their dozen blows in the two scoring innings yesterday to down the Sox 6 to 3 and take the series three games to one.

Every man in the lineup except Manager Lou Boudreau connected at least once, while Oris Hockett, Ken Keltner, Otto Denning and Ray Mack collected two hits apiece.

The Tribesmen meet the St. Louis Browns for the first time today in the opener of a four-game series. Mel Harder is Bordreau's nomination for the mound chore. Steve Sundra, former Cleveland sandlotter and ex-Yankee, is his opponent.

Lefty Al Smith went the distance against the Sox in the series finale despite the fact he gave up 11 blows and issued four bases on balls.

The Indians set a new season scoring record for themselves against an array of Pale Hose throwers that included Jake Wade, Bill Swift, Oval Grove, Joe Haynes and Don Hanski.

PLAY TWILIGHTER.

CINCINNATI —(AP)— The Cincinnati Reds and the Chicago Cubs play a ball game this twilight for the special benefit of one man—Private Dale Bortler of Chillicothe, O.

Dale is the lad who bailed out of a bomber over Japanese-occupied New Britain and emerged from the jungles ten months later to ask "How did the Reds come out in 1942?"

Dick Barret for the Cubs and Johnny Vander Meer for the Reds are going to try to bring him up to date on the sport in a warring world.

Today's 5 p. m. game time may be just the opener for the Reds really swinging the shift. . . General Manager Warren C. Giles says he's going to poll the town on what time folks would like to see games and he adds that he's going to heed the voice of the people.

That is, if half the voting stock wants 3 p. m., half the games will start then if another quarter says 10 a. m., a quarter start then. And so one.

* * *

The Reds already tried one at 11:30 a. m. last Monday, and the main result was a howl from Bill Veeck of the Milwaukee Brewers of the American Association. Bill said they stole his idea and it serves them right that only 3,000 came out.

Harvard Suspends Gridiron Game

BOSTON, Mass. —(INS)— Harvard's decision to abandon intercollegiate football for the duration was not shared today by Yale and Princeton, the other members of the "big three."

Carroll F. Getchell, athletic director, announced suspension of Harvard's 1943 "big league" football schedule and said that only intramural football would be played next fall.

Howard Odell, coach at Yale, said his team would play its full schedule with the exception of Harvard.

"We will fill the Harvard date in our schedule," Odell said.

At Princeton, Asa Bushnell, acting director of Athletics said the Princeton eleven would go ahead with its schedule as planned but of course eliminate the Harvard contest.

Harvard has lost its coach, Dick Harlow and its athletic director William J. Bingham to the armed services in addition to most of its best players. Getchell said the action was taken because of the heavy war demands on the university's facilities for training large army and navy units and the accelerated academic schedules left little time for major sports.

Red Birds Keep Association Lead

(By United Press)

The Columbus Red Birds maintained their leadership in the American Association today, but it took a four-run splurge in the ninth inning Thursday to down Louisville, 7 to 6, and keep them out in front.

Going into the ninth, the Colonels were leading, 5 to 3, when the Birds rallied for their four tallies. Louisville added one in their half of the ninth, but fell one short of a tie. Columbus was outhit, 13 to 9.

The Minneapolis Millers kept close on the heels of the leaders when they again downed Milwaukee, 5 to 2.

Mel Queen of the Kansas City Blues, turned in a beautiful three-hit job to nose out St. Paul, 3 to 0, and keep the Blues tied with Minneapolis for second place.

Although they touched Johnny Whitehead for 12 hits, the Indianapolis Indians were unable to make them count, and Toledo won, 5 to 4. Each team was charged with four errors.

SHELBY WHIPPETS SCORE FOURTH WIN

SHELBY—The Shelby Whippets defeated New Haven, 11 to 4, on Thursday afternoon at New Haven for its four baseball win out of six contests.

Bobby Perman was on the mound for Shelby. The Whippets took an early lead and held it throughout the game.

Clipper Fritz Goes to Pot

Gets Out Scissors and Paste For Fun Column.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS — (AP) — The old paste-pot and scissors get another workout today as we clip a quip or two from the columns of Ohio's sports scribes, thereby saving us a lot of work and giving us time to get in a round of golf with one of last year's rejuvenated balls.

The pickings are a bit slim, for several reasons. Jimmy Doyle of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, prize wise cracker, is on vacation—the lucky stiff. Several other scribes just haven't recovered enough from their trip to the derby to look on the lighter side of things—most of them being long-shot players; others, including yours truly, have a touch of spring fever.

Counting out those in that obtusely-phrased paragraph, here are the best jests from the rest of our guests:

Bill Snypp, Lima News: The only lively feature about the new baseball has been the discussion over how dead it is. Webster says the ball's balata is a milky juice from the bully tree. When dried it forms an elastic gum often used to insulate telephone cables. To date, few of the batters have been contacting long distance. (Must be all right, Bill, for they rang every publicity bell in the country over it.)

Ed McCauley, Cleveland News: Lou Boudreau has listed the men who will represent the Indians in the benefit bowling match with the Linsz team Monday night. He'll use Smith, Cullenbine, Salveson, Mack, Keltner and Denning as regulars, with Boudreau and Susce as alternates. The Indians will use six men against the five on the Lansz team. (This is once Lou won't object if the boys strike out.)

Jim Schlemmer, Akron Beacon-Journal: It's not hard to see that hysteria is sweeping the baseball owners' fraternity house. They're scheduling starting times for any hour they figure a street car will dump a full load in front of their turnstiles. (They're planning one here in the wee hours, Jim, when only an owl car is running.)

Nixson Denton, Cincinnati Times-Star: If the big boys keep on changing the starting times for baseball games, fans will have to hire secretaries to see that they get to the ball parks when they should. (Confusing, isn't it, with 'em playing daytime, night time, EWT and CWT?)

* * *

Paul Hornung, Columbus Dispitch: An AP wirephoto from North Africa recently pictured an Arab wearing a Northwestern university sweat shirt. He was Ali Ben Bey, who graduated in 1940 and had a couple of major league bids after being a brilliant shortstop for the 'Cats. He chose to return to Casablanca, however, to help his father in the rug business. It would have been a heck of a lot cheaper for the old man to have kept Ali Ben at home and imported a bunch of Benny Goodman records, if Ben was going to wind up as a 'rug-cutter' anyway. (Well Paul, Ben is a sweat shirt ahead isn't he?)

Ken Wurtsbacher, Springfield Sun: Frankie Frisch had three rookies in his Pittsburgh lineup on opening day, and promises to use more as the season progresses. At that rate it won't be long before the Pirates have an all-Frischman team. (Uncle Sam has a lot of rookies on his club, Ken, and he's doing all right.)

* * *

John R. Hanlon, Alliance Review: Existing maps of Stark and Portage counties are all wrong. One need venture only a short distance north of Alliance to prove this. The maps do not show the water, forming the reservoir being created by the Berlin dam project, that is rapidly assuming the proportions of a lake, engulfing farmlands, covering roads and bridges. (That's the only Berlin-created project that will ever change our map, isn't it, John?)

Partenheimer Wins Last Wooster Game

Stan Partenheimer, Mansfield southpaw hurler, had quite a workout yesterday winning a 5-4 victory for Wooster college over Kent State before leaving last night for Louisville.

Taking the mound in the sixth with the Scots leading 4-0, Stan was nicked for a home run, but kept Kent State subdued for the rest of three innings. In the ninth Jerry Katherman took over the hill chores and walked the first three batters to face him.

Partenheimer was called in from the outfield and a run scored on a passed ball. Another came in on a wild pitch, and a third on a single tying the score. In the 10th the Wooster catcher hit a home run to win the ball game.

Preakness Has Small Entry

Count Fleet and Three Others May Start Race.

BALTIMORE— (INS) — Count Fleet, winner of the Kentucky derby and supposed wonder horse, probably will face three opponents Saturday in the Preakness.

Certain to go are Allen T. Simmons' Blue Swords and W. L. Brann's Vincentive, while R. L. Hall's Partido is a possible candidate.

The latter, which will run for the tail-end of the purse, if at all, was claimed only a few days ago by Hall, who must get permission from the previous owner to start in the Preakness.

Meantime, it was all Count Fleet in the talk and in the prospective wagering. He virtually was conceded the Preakness and only an accident was regarded as a possible winner over him.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK— (AP) —Harvard's announcement that it won't play intercollegiate football next fall surprised exactly nobody hereabouts, and as an old Princeton grad, we might comment: "It's not the first time—and we don't mean during world war one, either." . . . Since they're playing a high school team at the end of spring practice, maybe the Harvard boys decided they'd found their class and might as well stay in it.

SPRING PRACTICE.

Taking a more serious look at the football situation, a recent note from the south points out that a lot of the colleges down that way would like to have teams but may not be able to support them unless they get contributions from the state treasuries. . . . Report from the Big Ten is that Ohio State, Iowa and Indiana are the hardest hit by player losses so far, but a listing of the Buckeyes who may be back sounds like a pretty promising squad from here. . . . Colleges in all sections have been reporting big spring turnouts, but most of the boys just wanted to get themselves toughened up for military service.

Ontario Trackmen Beat Lexington

Ontario high school Warriors defeated Lexington trackmen 62½ to 46½ in a meet yesterday at Ontario.

Downs paced Ontario with 16½ points, winning the hop step and jump, 440 yard run and broad jump and tying for third in the high jump.

Ontario made a clean sweep of points in the 880 and shot put and took the high jump. Lexington copped the 100, 440 yard relay, and 220.

The two teams meet again at Lexington, May 11.

Set to Stick With Indians

Naymick Closes Door on Return To Minors.

By DENNIS DALTON

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— Big Mike Naymick, who has been trying for eight years to find a place in major league baseball for his six-foot eight-inch frame, will know by May 15 whether he's at last made the grade with the Cleveland Indians or will turn in his oversize uniform for a war job.

Two pitchers must be dropped from the Tribe roster by the May 15 deadline and the big lad from Weirton, W. Va., is determined he won't be one of them receiving a ticket to the minor leagues. Naymick said he would take a war job before going back to the minors.

Manager Lou Boudreau was impressed with Naymick's performance last Sunday when the 237-pound hurler saved the Detroit game for Mel Harder. It was a tough spot for Naymick when he was called from the bullpen.

The Tribe was leading 3 to 2, but two men were on base when Naymick entered the game. He retired the next eight batters in order and his teammates went on to a 5 to 2 victory.

Naymick's trouble during the eight years he has tried to crash the major leagues has been his spotty control. In his first trip to the mound this season he issued six free passes before being removed in the fifth inning of a game whose loss was charged to him.

Possessor of terrific speed, Mike appears to have gained the confidence he lacked in previous years. In the past he has hesitated in using his fast ball for fear of "beaning" the batter.

"This spring I decided to forget all that nonsense," he said. "I figure it's up to the batter to get out of the way if the ball comes at his head. I'd never hit anyone intentionally."

There is little doubt that Naymick is one of the six pitchers from whom Boudreau must eliminate two.

The others are Paul Calvert, Pete Center, Poat and Allie Reynolds. Most have not been used as yet, but Allie Reynolds and Calvert have shown class.

The Tribe mound mainstays are Jim Bagby, Mel Harder, Al Smith, Al Milnar, Vernon Kennedy and Chubby Dean.

"They're six good starters," Boudreau said. "If the others don't get a chance to show what they've got before May 15, I'll just have to make my own picks."

Naymick, a product of Weirton semi-pro baseball who has played on six minor league teams, is determined to show he's here to stay.

Phils Don't Look So Futile This Season

Split Series With Dodgers But Still Occupy National Cellar

By JUDSON BAILEY
(AP Sports Writer)

THE PHILADELPHIA PHILLIES, who have been the butt of many bad jokes, are now making the bad jokers say "but . . ."

The Phillies are in the National league cellar, as expected, but . . .

Manager Bucky Harris and Owner Bill Cox have succeeded in collecting a reasonable facsimile of a baseball club. At least it looks more like a ball club than the door mat of recent years.

They have beaten the first place Brooklyn Dodgers in three out of nine games and, considering the masterminding that Harris has had to do even to get a team on the field, this is a minor miracle.

The Phillies halved a four-game series just completed in Brooklyn, winning a tight, ten-inning tussle yesterday 3-2. John Podgajny held the Dodgers to five hits and i.. the tenth Glen Stewart tripled and came home with the winning run on a fly. Their victim was Buck Newsom.

In the only other National league game yesterday the St. Louis Cardinals were cuffed again by the Chicago Cubs, 5-1, and lost their exclusive hold on second place.

The New York Yankees sent the Boston Red Sox away from Yankee stadium bruised and groggy from four consecutive one-run defeats. The American league leaders bagged a doubleheader 2-1 and 5-4 to conclude the series.

The first game was a duel between Ernie Bonham of the Yanks and Lefty Oscar Judd, but Charley Keller settled it with a triple in the seventh.

However, the nightcap was a nightmare. Rookie Tom Byrne started on the mound for the Yanks, faced five men and failed to get any of them out. Before Bill Zuber could come to his rescue he had forced two runs across with a walk and Tony Lupien singled off Zuber for two more. This ended the scoring for the Sox, who made only four hits, and the Yanks didn't get a run till the seventh. But in the eighth Dick Newsome loaded the bases and all scored, Relief Pitcher Mace Brown forcing in the tying run with a walk. A wild throw by Brown in the ninth gave the Yanks the deciding run.

The St. Louis Browns downed Detroit for the first time this season in a classic 1-0 contest in which the winning run was scored in the ninth on George McQuinn's triple and a fly.

Roger Wolff stopped the Washington Senators 7-0 for the Philadelphia Athletics.

The Cleveland Indians entrenched themselves more strongly in second place by beating the Chicago White Sox 6-3 behind the steady pitching of Southpaw Al Smith.

Opens at Ohio.

The gaudy, riotous life of San rancisco's old Barbary Coast prings to life once again in 20th entury-Fox's new film, "Hello, risco, Hello," which is due to pen at the Ohio tomorrow. Alice aye, John Payne, Jack Oakie and ynn Bari are starred. Miss Faye plays the part of the toast of the town. She carries the torch for Payne, who was born on the wrong side of the tracks and is out to buy the town. Oakie provides the laughs in this technicolor production. The supporting cast features Laird Cregar, June Havoc, Ward Bond and George Barbier. Bruce Humberstone directed the film.

Screwball Comedy.

Lana Turner mixes sodas and figures in adventures ranging from an amnesia masquerade to a hectic romance with Robert Young in M. G. M.'s "Slightly Dangerous," opening tomorrow at the Madison. Miss Turner plays the part of a soda clerk in a department store. She tires of her job, leaves it and writes a suicide note. However, she changes her mind, and with the thought of getting sympathy, she poses as an amnesia victim. Complications arise when she is mistaken for a millionaire's long lost daughter. Hal Roach's "Fall In," another comedy on army life starring William Tracy and Joe Sawyer, is the other attraction.

"Ape Man."

The story of a scientist whose secret experiments result in his own transformation to an ape man is the basis of the screenplay for Bela Lugosi's new film, "The Ape Man," now playing at the Ritz. The hair-raising story finds Lugosi committing murder in his attempts to secure the spinal fluid which will again restore him to human form. Ken Maynard makes his screen comeback in the co-feature, "Wild Horse Stampede."

Impersonation.

Ralph Bellamy stars in the Park's top attraction, "The Great Impersonation," story of international spying. The plot of the story unfolds when a German officer, Baron von Regenstein, and an Englishman, Sir Edward Dominey, meet in an obscure village in Africa. The two men are nearly identical. Sir Dominey had left England six years previous to their meeting. The Baron plots to kill Sir Dominey and return to England posing as the dead man to obtain military information for the German government. Co-attraction at the Park is "Two Fisted Justice."

In 1942, there were 859,694 persons on U. S. federal pension rolls.

I—VITAL STATISTICS

1—Death Notices

BECK

Clifford C., 60, died at his home, 893 Park Ave. West following a brief illness. Funeral services will be conducted Saturday at 3.00 P. M. at the Jones Memorial with Rev. Charles F. Sheriff, pastor of St. Matthews Lutheran Church officiating. Burial will be in Crestline Cemetery. (Jones Funeral Home). (B-K)

2—Card of Thanks

WE WISH to thank our many friends, neighbors and relatives for their kindness and sympathy shown us during the sickness and death of our dear husband and step-father Harvey D. Freehafer. Also pallbearers and those who furnished cars. Rev. Faulkner for his comforting words, Knights Templar for their services and Finefrocks for their kind and courteous services.
MRS. JENNIE L. FREEHAFER, AND FAMILY. (M-K)

3—In Memoriam

IN LOVING MEMORY of Lillian Somers Black who departed this life on Sunday, May 10, 1942.

You left us sad and lonely the day you went away.
And none can heal our broken hearts, no matter what they say.
But we know that you are happy in the land God calls His own,
And we'll meet you on the golden stairs the day God calls us home.

Sadly missed by his loving Mother, Brother and Sisters. (W-k)

MIXED TRENDS CLOUD MARKET TRANSACTIONS

National Retail Spending Picks Up Briskly To Exceed Last Year.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Slightly mixed trends clouded the direction of the stock market in today's early transactions.

Up a shade at a fairly active opening were Glenn Martin, Public Service of N. J., Electric Power and Light, Texas Co., and U. S. Rubber. Small declines were posted for Chrysler, Anaconda, General Motors, Pullman and Union Carbide.

Holders of merchandising issues derived some encouragement from the Dun & Bradstreet survey estimating the nation's retail spending picked up briskly this week and exceeded the comparable time last year by 7 to 10 per cent. More seasonal weather throughout the country received the principal credit for the expansion.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Wheat dropped at the opening today on selling by houses with southwestern connections. Oats were steady and rye slumped.

Wheat started ½ lower to ⅛ higher, May $1.45¾, July $1.44¾-⅝, and corn was unchanged at ceilings, May $1.05.

REDS CHARGE POLES SPIED

Foreign Commissar Reports 'Offenders' Punished or Deported.

a letter from Premier Josef Stalin had raised hopes that the break in relations between the two governments could be mended soon. Stalin said Russia desired a strong and independent Poland after the war.

Polish government in exile refused to permit a Polish army to fight Germany on the Russian front. Vishinsky said, violating article 7 of the Polish-Russian friendship pact of July 30, 1941, signed soon after the Nazis invaded Russia. Under this article, a Polish army was to be organized on Soviet soil from Polish prisoners seized when the Red army occupied the eastern part of Poland coincidental with the German invasion of western Poland in 1939. The army was duly organized but has never fought.

The agreement, he said, set the Polish army at 30,000 men and the Soviet government loaned the Poles 300,000,000 rubles to provide for the force, a division of which was to have been sent to the front but never was. Later inquiries drew promises that were unfulfilled, he added. The actual Polish force was said to total 41,661 men.

Vishinsky bluntly told the newspaper correspondents that Soviet-Polish relations depended on the circumstances of the moment and added:

"It's up to the Polish government to think about the steps to be taken. The Polish government is responsible for the rupture and therefore it is up to the Polish government to take the necessary concrete steps."

He said it was too early to discuss under what conditions relations might be resumed with the present or a re-constructed government under Polish Premier Wladislaw Sikorski.

At the same time, he spiked reports that the Soviet government might be planning to form another Polish government on Soviet territory as "pure invention."

While the Polish government has refused to live up to certain sections of the 1941 friendship pact and other agreements, he said the rupture in Soviet-Polish relations and other events have not invalidated the agreements in themselves.

He charged that members of the Polish embassy staff and high army officers had used the Polish relief centers in Russia to carry out espionage against the Soviet Union.

His statement accused of espionage nine secretaries or representatives at Polish relief offices at Vladivostok, Archangel and in other regions and districts and said other unnamed Polish representatives also were involved.

MANSFIELD NEWS IN BRIEF

Board Meeting — The executive board of the Red Cross will meet Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 p. m. in the Red Cross office.

Leaves School — Mrs. Richard Wolford, teacher at Hedges school since January, has resigned to move to Youngstown. Her husband has accepted a position in that city.

Oil Consumers Order—Oil consumers must place serial numbers on their purchase coupons, ration officials warned today after many cases of failure to endorse them had been brought to their attention.

Dance Today — Girls' Athletic association and the ninth grade class of Johnny Appleseed Junior high school will sponsor a dance in the school gymnasium today at 8 p. m. Music will be furnished by recordings.

Receives Gift—Miss Margaret Tinsley, teacher at Mansfield Senior high school for the past eight years, was presented a correspondence set by members of the faculty this morning. She will leave soon for service in the WAACS.

Plan Festival—Meeting in joint session last night, Parent Teachers association and Mother's club of Newman school decided to sponsor a spring festival May 28 at the school. Committees will be named later.

Fire Destroys Car — Flames which started from a rubbish fire destroyed an automobile and damaged a garage Thursday afternoon at the home of Dr. H. F. Plaut, 441 Newman street. Firemen from the No. 2 and No. 4 stations extinguished the blaze. A little later, firemen were called to the Hughes-Keenan plant on Newman street to put out a fire in a tractor motor.

Scout Night — Boy Scout and Girl Scout night will be observed Tuesday at Hedges school with the scouts giving demonstrations of their work. The program will start at 7:30 p. m., and is sponsored by the Parent-Teachers association.

Notified Of Death—Mrs. L. H. Nelson, 220 Lind avenue, and Mrs. Mable Dick, South Diamond street, were notified yesterday of the death in Marion of their mother, Mrs. Ella D. Graif, 79. Funeral services and burial will be Saturday afternoon in Marion.

Dogs Bite Boys — Two more Mansfield boys were attacked yesterday by dogs, parents of the children reported to police last night. David Richard Schneider, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Schneider, 277 East Second street, suffered an injury to his left knee while playing near his home, and another dog attacked Billy Cahall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Cahall, 325 West Third street. Police ordered owners of both dogs to tie the animals for 10 days.

ALLIES ENTER TUNIS, BIZERTE; CUT FOE IN TWO

Nazis Facing 'Dunkirk' Battle on Beaches of Tunisia After Swift United Nations Blows.

were being smashed back to the Tunis beaches, encircled and cut up and that the enemy front might soon be split by the isolation of Bizerte. American troops were hammering wedges into the enemy lines south of the naval base in an effort to cut communications but the Axis still had one road from Bizerte to Tunis.

"We have got them just where we want them—with their backs to the wall," Alexander's order said. "This final battle will be fierce . . . but you will win . . . the whole of North Africa."

The enemy suffered tremendous losses on land, while Allied planes ranging northward as far as Italy sank a destroyer and 11 small ships, destroyed 40 enemy planes and hit a second destroyer as well as many other vessels. The concentrated aerial attacks stopped virtually all enemy reinforcements and supplies to Tunisia.

For more than 36 hours the Allied double-headed offensive had been gaining momentum and the Axis appeared to be too badly beaten to hold much hope of stopping it short of Cap Bon.

The U. S. 2nd army corps was advancing on Bizerte from the west and southwest. The capture of the Djebel Cheniti range of hills some 10 miles west of the naval base carried the troops making up the northern arm of the Pincers to a plain stretching all the way to the port itself.

To the southwest, American forces pushing up the road from Mateur were approaching Ferryville, naval dockyard town between lakes Bizerte and Achkel 10 miles below Bizerte.

The first army moved forward northeast of Medjez El Bab early yesterday after a creeping curtain of bombs and shells that literally devastated everything in their path.

By mid-afternoon, the British had advanced 10 miles and captured Massicault, a strongly-fortified town considered the key defense point for the entire western approaches to Tunis. Ahead stretched only the flat coastal plain, ideal for tank operations.

Axis Prepares For News of Tunisia Fall

LONDON—(INS)— The Rome-Berlin Axis today began seriously to condition its populace for news of disastrous defeat in Tunisia as feeling spread in London that "big things are being planned" to hasten the end of Nazi tyranny.

An official communique issued by the German high command admitted that a "deep breach" had been made by attacking Allied armies in Axis positions in Tunisia, while a highly-placed Italian spokesman said in an address to Fascist party leaders that if Italy falls, she will do so with fine dignity."

There was a distinct undercurrent of pessimism in all Axis broadcasts.

The prediction of "big things to come" was emphasized in a broadcast by CBS Correspondent Edward R. Murrow.

"There is a certain air of expectancy over here," he said, "a feeling that big things are being planned.

"The tension that has preceded previous dramatic developments is missing. But that will come later. So don't expect any detailed prophecies about future action in western Europe. Some one might just happen to be right."

Declares Tunisia Fight In Last Phase

LONDON — Gen. Sir Harold Alexander declared in an order of the day to his 18th army group that 'we have reached the last phase of the campaign' and 'are going to drive the enemy into the sea,' the Algiers radio said today in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press.

The broadcast gave this quotation:

"Soldiers of the Allies:

"We have reached the last phase of this campaign. We have grouped our victorious armies and are going to drive the enemy into the sea."

It was said the order of the day was issued on the eve of the new Allied offensive, that is night before last.

The order of the day continued:

"We have got them just where we want them—with their backs to the wall.

"You have proved yourselves masters of the battlefield and therefore you will win this last great battle which will give us the whole of North Africa.

"The eyes of the world are on you and the hopes of those at home.

"Forward then to victory!"

Allied Strategy Shift Expected

WASHINGTON —(INS)— An apparent shift in Allied military strategy in the European theater loomed today with the appointment of Lieut. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, artillery and armored warfare specialist, as commander of U. S. forces in that area.

The late Lieut. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, whom Gen. Devers succeeds, was a top-notch airman and the army's leading exponent of heavy day-and-night bombing. Gen. Andrews was killed Monday in an airplane crash in Iceland.

With rumors of "invasion in 1943" gaining widespread currency, numerous military observers believe that a new phase in the United Nations offensive will soon be underway with special emphasis on unified tank and artillery warfare.

Secretary of War Stimson formally announced Gen. Devers' promotion yesterday at his press conference.

Strengthen Norway Fortifications

STOCKHOLM, May 6—(Delayed)—(AP)—The Germans are intensifying the work on Norwegian fortifications following a conference in Narvik at which possibilities of invasion were discussed by Norwegian leaders and heads of the German army, navy and police, reliable reports from inside Norway said today.

These reports said orders had been given by the Norwegian underground organization to prepare for open revolt and more snarls had developed in the total labor mobilization campaign.

Reds Score New Gains In Kuban Area

MOSCOW—(INS)—Beating down bitter German counter-attacks in the Kuban valley of the west Caucasus, Red army tank and infantry units surged forward today to reap new gains in the drive to recapture the Black sea naval base of Novorossisk.

The Soviet high command reported in its noon communique that the Nazis were suffering terrific losses in futile attempts to stave off the Russian troops.

A number of counter-blows were struck against the Red army northeast of Novorossisk but all were repelled with heavy losses to the Germans, the high command said.

The battling often developed into hand-to-hand engagements as the Russians and Germans came to close grips and furious fighting developed between artillery and armored units. Soviet air forces actively supported the ground units.

Several important heights on the approaches to the naval base were seized by the Russians after they overcome the stubborn enemy resistance.

Yanks Drop 125 Tons of Bombs On Harbor

CAIRO —(AP)— More than 50 American Liberator bombers strewed 125 tons of high explosives over Reggio Di Calabria harbor on the toe of the Italian boot in daylight yesterday, U. S. army fliers who took part in the raid said today.

"Almost all the bombs found their mark," said Colonel Keith K. Compton of St. Joseph, Mo., who led the attack. "Flames spurted thousands of feet into the air" from one of the two large merchant vessels which received direct hits, he said.

One Liberator failed to return, but the Americans shot down at least one enemy plane of the group that attempted to intercept them.

Hits also were scored on moles and harbor installations, a U. S. army communique said.

Call Axis Resistance Delaying Action

LONDON —(INS)— Allied military observers believe that the Axis now is conducting merely a delaying action in Tunisia, the Algiers radio said today.

Most of the superior Axis officers were reported to have left the embattled French protectorate by air.

PLAN ONE-DAY CITY CLEAN-UP

City, C. of C. Think Salvage Campaigns Will Make Job an Easier One.

fective furnaces and wiring, and roofs that might ignite easily. When the blanks are filled out by parents of pupils, they will be returned to the schools and then to the Chamber of Commerce committee which will check them and send out letters recommending changes to eliminate fire hazards.

Only pupils from the third grade through junior high school will receive the blanks. The Chamber of Commerce committee asks that the blanks be returned during the week of May 17-22.

City residents will be urged to gather up rubbish Monday and Tuesday, May 17 and 18, and place it in containers at the curbs so city workers can pick it up early Wednesday, May 19.

Bright tin cans that can be processed for later collection, ashes and brush will not be collected as rubbish. Mayor W. J. Locke said today he would ask the WPB whether the city can collect old tin cans and those that cannot be processed during the clean-up campaign.

Objectives of the clean-up as outlined by the Chamber of Commerce committee as co-sponsor, are elimination of fire hazards, beautification of homes and lawns, and repair of homes, fences and out-buildings.

REFUSE CLAIM

Richland county commissioners refused yesterday to allow the $800 damage claim of A. B. Mabee, West Third street, over whose farm a part of the new location of the Trimble road will run.

Mabee indicated that he would appeal his claim, within the 10 days allowed for such action, to the probate court.

Commissioners approved relocation of the road to eliminate "Dead Man's" crossing over the Baltimore & Ohio and Pennsylvania tracks, northwest of the city.

Ohio C. of C. Report Calls For Tax Reduction or Lower Service Cost.

cept for a slight reduction in the levy for outside bonds," W. B. Boden, one of the C. of C. researchers said. "The city of Mansfield is financially sound and if the taxpayers are ever to get the benefit of a tax reduction, it had better be accomplished now."

The earmarking of surplus funds for certain major future projects may well be intentioned, but because of changes in administrations, these plans are not always carried out.

"I know of one instance where a city needed a garage to store city cars. Waterworks funds were used to build the garage. To make it legal, a plaque, 'water department' was placed on the building. It had nothing to do with the water department."

Advantages of having a substantial surplus on hand when the war ends were cited by Mayor W. J. Locke, Auditor Paul L. Kelley and City Engineer W. C. Statler.

"I'll grant that reductions are in order on some of the burden on the taxpayer," Mayor Locke said, "but we are going to face some badly needed projects when the war ends. If we have the money to carry them to completion, we won't have to call upon the taxpayers for bond issues to finance them.

"Priorities have prevented us from keeping city equipment in shape. Much of it will have to be new equipment. Priorities have prevented us from working out other projects on streets, sewers and in the water department. Those will have to be done, too."

Two major projects which the city hopes to carry out were mentioned at the session, by Engineer Statler. One is the construction of a 6,000,000-gallon reservoir as a twin to the present one in Woodland. It would cost in the neighborhood of $150,000.

Another project he mentioned was the construction of a trunk line sewer with a capacity of handling two-thirds of the city's sewage flow. He estimated the cost of this at $80,000. Replacement of old water mains to afford better fire protection and consumer service were also cited by the engineer as needed improvements work on which is at a stalemate because of war priorities on materials.

Auditor Kelley also pointed out that war priorities prevented spending and resulted in the unusually high balances in the various funds.

"It would be a good idea to have some surplus on hand after the war to finance projects that will be badly needed then," he said.

Citing a $51,116 balance in the sanitary sewer and sewage disposal fund, W. C. McWilliams, second member of the research staff, said the balance, together with the rate at which it is increasing indicate the collection of more revenue than is needed for necessary operating expenses.

A suspension of sewer rentals for the last half of 1943 was strongly recommended in the survey. This move would still leave a safe balance in the fund, McWilliams said.

Pointing out that the balance in the city garbage fund increased from $7,092 at the end of 1939 to $15,800 at the end of 1942, McWilliams said this, too, indicated more income than was necessary for expenses. He recommended a reduction in the quarterly service charge.

Declaring that the waterworks department surplus has grown to $91,033, at the end of 1942, Researcher Boden said "it can only be concluded that, with the surplus growing at this high rate, more money is on hand than needed, and the only solution to this is either suspension of rates for the last half of 1943 or a reduction in the present rate."

The report also hit at the present method of purchasing gasoline for city consumption. Buying in small quantities at retail prices less federal tax is costing the city considerable more than it would have to pay, the survey said.

It recommended that in the remodeling work being done at the old Main street pumping station, provision be made to install a gasoline pump and storage from which the city would keep and draw its gasoline supplies.

The report says costs are excessive in Mansfield for indigent surgical cases. It cites that 20 per cent of the total relief cost or $5,000 is appropriated for medical relief.

The $5,000 is paid under contract to the city's doctors.

The report says that "during February of 1943, there were only 56 city relief cases or families and the total encumbrance for that month was $2,009. Certainly in 56 cases, there would not be enough sickness to warrant doctors' charges of $566.67 a month."

It recommended that the $5,000 appropriated by the city each year be discontinued. To replace it, the report recommended creation of a board of three or four doctors to pass on all surgical bills rendered by doctors for indigent surgical cases. Cases should be approved by the service-safety director at the time of operation.

The report was not without praise of methods of various operations of city departments. It hit chiefly at the surpluses but frequently complimented city departments for efficient operation.

Attending the session last night were city and county officials, members of the tax-committee of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce and others interested. Dale Roth, tax committee chairman, presided after introduction by Ray Calene C. of C. president.

Senate Committeemen Want Modified Version of Carlson-Ruml Plan.

ben W. Markley of Kentucky conceded that the house compromise bill was not acceptable to the committee.

Committee Chairman Walter F. George, D., Ga., said the committee would make every effort to complete action and speed it to final passage by May 15 so that the treasury could start collecting taxes, through withholding at the source, on July 1.

The predominant interest in the Carlson-Ruml plan—which provides for complete erasure of 1942 levies contrasted with an approximate 75 per cent forgiveness in the house-approved bill — was clearly indicated yesterday. As soon as Treasury Counsel Randolph E. Paul had completed testimony in which he opposed the Carlson Ruml bill as "inequitable and unfair." Committee members began questioning him about specific provisions.

and to the lumber, non-ferrous metals mining and steel industries on an industry-wide basis.

Disclosure of the study of the broader application of the order came during a discussion of the directive issued by McNutt to the steel industry in which he called for a 48-hour week in that industry by July 1. Officials were asked whether it would be applied to other industries. They replied:

"We have reviewed industry after industry and for the last two weeks have been diligently studying whether it should be extended right across the country."

Under current regulations, employers of less than eight persons are automatically exempted from adopting a longer work week, while others can secure exemptions provided they prove to the satisfaction of local WMC officials that their operation on a 48-hour schedule would not release workers for employment elsewhere, or increase production.

told a war labor board panel that granting of United Mine Workers' demands would add $700,000,000 a year to the nation's coal bill.

"The mine workers' demands would increase the cost of producing coal in the Appalachian area alone by approximately $500,000,000 annually," O'Neill said.

The panel was working against time in trying to perfect a new agreement before May 19, expiration date of the truce under which miners are now working. There appeared to be slight chance that the panel will have concluded its deliberations by then.

O'Neill told the hearing that the mine workers could not justify their wage demands under the little steel formula which President Roosevelt has said must be enforced.

O'Neill said that including overtime pay, the miners now receive an average hourly rate of $1.08, an increase of 26.4 per cent over January, 1941. Weekly earnings at a base rate of $46.50 are up 51.7 per cent over January, 1941, he said.

He estimated that the granting of the mine workers demands would increase the cost of mining coal by $1.19 a ton. Of that amount the major items would be 42 cents per ton on the $2-a-day wage increase demanded and 60.5 cents on portal-to-portal pay.

The mine workers' demands would increase their average daily earnings from approximately $8.48 a day to approximately $14.08 a day, O'Neill estimated.

The three-man panel, ignored by the United Mine Workers, heard arguments by bituminous coal operators oposing demands of the miners' president, John L. Lewis, for $2 a day wage increase for both bituminous and anthracite miners.

In order to obtain as complete a statement as possible of the issues and arguments by both sides, the panel named Nathan Feinsinger, WLB attorney, to represent the miners. Feinsinger was to repeat to the panel arguments advanced by Lewis in support of his demands made during direct negotiations with the operators in New York last month.

Lewis Still Grimly Silent On Dispute

NEW YORK — (INS) — John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America maintained grim silence today on all questions involving the coal wage controversy now before the National War Labor Board.

He was not available for any statement concerning a possible radio talk to the nation in which he would outline the miner's case to the general public. It is known, however, that the policy committee of the union authorized Lewis some time ago to buy "time" on national radio chains and give the miner's side of the story at any time he saw fit.

Virtually all of Lewis' associates have left New York for their homes but Lewis is still registered at the Roosevelt hotel where the miners established headquarters during the unsuccessful contract negotiations with mine operators.

Plant Seizure Bill Given Go-Ahead

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Chairman May (D) Ky., today made the Connally plant seizure and anti-strike bill the "first order of business" before the house military affairs committee and predicted its approval next week with "no need for hearings."

"I'm for what the bill provides — and more," May declared. "It will get speedy consideration."

The bill of Sen. Connally (D) Tex., which passed the senate Wednesday by a vote of 63 to 16, specifically empowers President Roosevelt to seize any essential plant or mine shut down by a labor dispute.

Survey Shows Miners Pay Same as Others

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— A high Office of Price Administration official today said that a survey of food costs in 230 coal mining towns revealed a considerable number of violations of regulations but indicated that prices were no higher than in comparable communities elsewhere.

OPA officials have admitted that price control, especially of foodstuffs, is all but out of control throughout the country. They are preparing to slap down dollars-and-cents price ceilings in an attempt to plug up the dike.

Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown last month ordered the mining town investigation at the request of President Roosevelt. It has covered, thus far, 475 retail stores in Illinois, Pennsylvania, Indiana, West Virginia, Kentucky and Alabama.

"On the basis of the report, we find there is no evidence that food costs in mining towns are any higher than in any other comparable community," the high OPA official said.

1,000 TO WATCH AWARDING OF 'E'

Army, Navy Officials Here For Ceremony This Afternoon at Hughes-Keenan Plant.

G. E. Kalbfleisch as master of ceremonies, the awards were to be presented by Major W. B. McClelland of the Cleveland Ordnance district, and A. E. Heiser, U.S.N.R., resident inspector of navy materials who is stationed at the Mansfield Westinghouse plant.

On the eve of the ceremonies, Heiser was promoted to the rank of lieutenant commander. He was to appear at the ceremonies in a lieutenant's uniform since he has not had time to obtain the new rank insignia.

Major McClelland, as the army representative, was to present the "E" flag to Miss Marie Jacot, secretary of the company, and John S. Gerhart, one of the firm's oldest employes. The acceptance address will be given by G. W. Way, president of the Hughes-Keenan company.

Lieut. Cmdr. Heiser was to present the "E" pins to officials of the company union, Pioneer Lodge No. 1, including President A. E. Hesseldon, president of the lodge, and Albert Afird, chief steward.

Expected to assist with the presentations was Dick Gourley, Cleveland, who recently was honorably discharged from the marines because of wounds suffered in action on Guadalcanal.

The Senior high school band was scheduled to play a brief concert preceding the ceremonies and to provide accompaniment for group singing at the opening and close of the program.

After the presentation, the "E" flag was to be raised to the top of a pole beside the American flag in front of the new addition to the Hughes-Keenan building. Scheduled to participate in the ceremonies were the McVey post, American Legion color guard and buglers.

Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, pastor of the First Lutheran church, was to give the invocation, while Msgr. R. C. Goebel of St. Peter's Cathohck church was invited to offer the benediction.

Army and navy officials from the Cleveland Ordnance district, public officials, and representatives of Mansfield industries were invited to the ceremonies.

PARTY AT CHURCH

BUTLER—Young people of the Butler Methodist church will have a party at 8 p. m. today in the church parlors. Committee in charge of the event consists of Phyllis Baughman, Marjorie Taylor, Charlene Innes, Wilma Pritchard and Jeanette Wilson.

Fires take about 10,000 human lives annually in the United States.

FIRM CITED

Officials Indicted For Making Defective Plane Castings.

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Charging violation of the war-time sabotage act in the manufacture of defective castings for fighter plane engines, a federal grand jury today returned a nine-count indictment against the National Bronze and Aluminum company, of Cleveland and seven key officials.

Those indicted on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government in violation of the sabotage statute in the manufacture of the castings were:

John L. Schmeller, president of the company; his sons, Fran' Schmeller, plant manager, Edward Schmeller, assistant manager and chief metallu. James C. Helm, plant superintendent; Otto M. St. John, ser. engineer; Robert W. Chrysler, chief of the final inspection department; and Benjamin Prudenze, foreman of the cleaning department and chief inspector of rough castings.

WIDOW GETS AWARD

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The Ohio Industrial commission today awarded $7,000 to Dorothy Jean Nelson, 21, and her three-year-old daughter, widow and child of John W. Nelson, 23, who was killed with two companions March 23 when a truck load of liquid air cartridges exploded near Cadiz.

Sometimes for hour there would be no in the room except the able sound of the clock and the fire gnawing at of coal and the soft swish-branches outside in the the wind fingered at the blinds.

Tonight there was a change.

Mrs. Gurney spoke up in a sudden silence.

"How old will thee be next week, Loveday?"

"Twenty," Loveday's mother answered, stopping her game and looking at the girl. "It seems impossible!"

"It seems old," Loveday said simply.

"Old!" her grandmother echoed with her gentle laugh. "Wait until thee's eighty-two!"

Eighty-two was much too great an age to hold any interest whatsoever for Loveday. Her mother's age was less, but even that seemed outside the range of personal interest tonight to a girl not yet twenty.

"Mother, how old were you when you got married?" she asked.

"I was thirty-three, Loveday. And that was thirty years ago."

"But, Mother, wasn't that rather late to marry?"

Her mother's sensible, attractive, sun-browned face twitched with a smile.

"Your father and I waited eleven years."

"Eleven years!"

"That would be thirteen years from now for Larry and me," Loveday thought. Aloud she said, "Why that long time?"

"My father was an invalid. He needed constant care, day and night. I've told you this before."

"I know. And you'd been married ten years before I put in an appearance."

"There was your brother, of course." Martha Gurney had resumed her game, but now her fingers stopped again. She could speak of him quietly, although she did not often speak of him at all. "Hugh was born when we had been married about five years," she said.

"Then you came after we lost him," Martha said. "You were the thing I had to live for. I was glad then that your father wasn't here to know it."

Loveday knew the story. The little brother, not five years old, had somehow wandered away on a summer afternoon; there had been family alarm, later a general alarm. Little Hugh had somehow got far up into the woods; his small body in its faded, weather-soaked, familiar little blue play suit had been found long afterward in a culvert high on the mountainside, into which the child had apparently crept for shelter. And only a few weeks later Loveday had been born to the stricken house, to be the comfort and delight of her surgeon grandfather and his Quaker wife and of her widowed mother.

"You know about your grandfather's money, Loveday?" her mother asked unexpectedly after an interval of silence.

"I know it's lost," Loveday answered, half closing her book.

"You know a search was made everywhere for it, or for papers or notes, or any indication of what had become of it?"

"Was it bonds or money or just a will or what was it?" she asked idly.

"We think it was money," her mother said. "You see, Loveday—pay attention darling, for it's important for you to know this! it was bonds first; your grandfather put everything he had into bonds. He saved for forty years to build a children's hospital—a hospital for little cripples."

"Incurables," Loveday put in, to show that she was attentive.

"Not necessarily; no. But for all crippled children. There were to be cottages and terraces and a clinic and dispensary, of course, and possibly a nurses' training school, all on this place."

"I know. All that stone," Loveday said, nodding. Her grandfather had bought up granite blocks wherever he had been able to find them, and an immense pile of them, on one of the level fields of the estate, the size of a small house, still remained as evidence of his plan.

"We know now," her mother pursued, "that he was—was not himself for months before he died. He had had a fall from one of the orchard ladders, and they thought afterward that it had injured him. For months he was turning his securities into cash and depositing it in various banks. We knew nothing of what he was doing, but I think if we had known he would have felt that whatever he did was right. But after his death there was simply no trace of it. No papers, no notes. Every cent had been withdrawn from the banks. There was his old will, written when you were a baby—after your father died—leaving you one third of everything, leaving Grandmother and me this place, and leaving all the rest for the hospital."

"Was it much, Mother?" Loveday asked, dreamily interested.

"It was a great deal. We knew it couldn't simply have disappeared; we had detectives here. Every closet and nook and corner of the whole place was searched; they tapped walls and groped through the rafters and tore out the chickens' nests and took up the carpets. No use."

"I remember them scouring around here," Loveday said. "Was it thousands?"

"It was possibly several hundred thousands."

"Oo-oo!" the girl said, impressed. She had never thought of the mythical lost fortune in connection with herself personally before. Now she thought with a sudden delightful twinge at her heart that it would be fun to have plenty of money—if one married—a darling little house like the Spanish bungalows in Santa Pepita canyon.

"It may be found someday," her mother was saying, "and if it is you must be ready to claim it. Not for your sake, but because of the hospital. Someday there must be an Owen Hugh Gurney Memorial hospital here, and all that stone must help to build it."

"He couldn't have spent all that money, Mother?"

"No, he didn't spend it," old Mrs. Gurney said quietly. "Thee knows that, Martha."

"We would have known if he had spent it," Martha Gurney agreed. "He never spent anything on himself. He worked in the garden here; he went into some hospital for consultation; he seemed absolutely normal right to the end. But afterward we heard from different sources that he had been worried about the money, talking of it. He had drawn out all he had saved from various banks. He had said to one or two persons that he thought he was being followed."

"I remember his ninety-fourth birthday!" Loveday said with sudden animation. "I just thought he was old. I didn't realize how extraordinary it is for a person to be ninety-four! That gives me seventy-four years to go. I remember his always drinking hot water before meals and telling us all to do it," she went on, smiling into the fire.

Her grandmother looked at her over her glasses.

"What does thee think thee would live on were thy mother and I to be taken away?" she asked. "Doesn't thee ever think of that?"

"Not often. Especially if you both are going to live to be ninety-four," Loveday told her, laughing.

"You would get in touch with Mr. St. George at once," Martha Gurney said.

"Well, I must say this is a cheering conversation!" Loveday protested. "It seems to me I liked Mr. St. George. But I remember hating his disgusting little boy—what was his odious little name, Rodney?—who laughed when the blackberry vines tore my skirt off!"

"Warren St. George of San Francisco would be a good friend to you, Loveday," her mother said. "He has managed everything since your grandfather died. We would not have known what to do without him."

"I remember him, gray hair and nice," Loveday said. "I called him 'Uncle Warren,' didn't I? He's the father. And Chris—I remember Chris St. George; that was the older brother," Loveday went on; "he wasn't so bad. I got stuck on the conservatory roof—nasty little Rodney had lured me up there—and Chris lifted me down and dusted me off and held my hand while we walked back to the house. He was—well, I was nine, and I know he was in college. And then Fanny—wasn't there a nice fat girl named Fanny ,with a white dog?"

"They are fine, good people," old Mrs. Gurney said.

"Perhaps they have it, Grandmother."

"Have what?"

"All Grandfather's money," Loveday's voice weakened into laughter, and she put her head down on her knees.

"Thee is truly giddy, child," her grandmother said in mild reproof.

"No, but you are almost twenty now," Loveday's mother reasoned seriously, "and old enough to realize that there is that obligation over us all—to find that money and use it for the purpose it was meant for."

PLANE ROUNDUP

GUNNISON, Colo. —(U.P.)— They're trying a new kind of round-up on Colorado's western slope—with the cowboys riding airplanes instead of horses.

Stockmen representing five cattle pools are making flights with Lt. Eddie Drapela, Grand Junction pilot, to locate snowbound cattle.

When the cattle are located, riders are sent out after them, cutting losses to stockmen from cattle freezing to death in isolated regions.

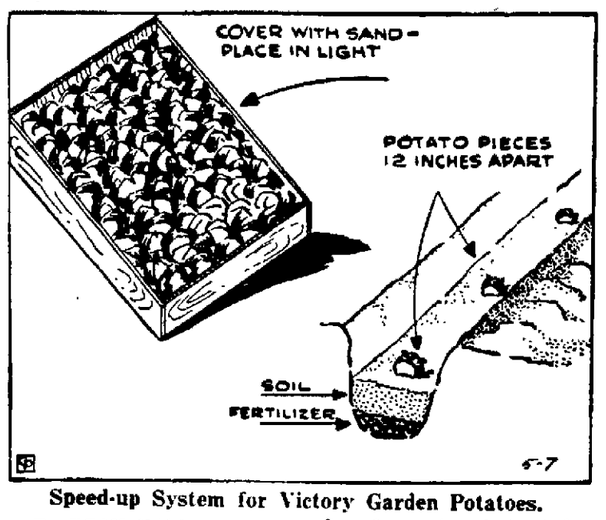
USE CANDLES

SULLIVAN, Me —(U.P.)— Candles in the wind are familiar sights along the Maine coast these days.

When it was discovered that gas lanterns were too bright to meet dimout regulations, Hancock county smelt fishermen substituted candles.

Despite the dimout, Surry Bay fishermen report an unusually good season, with an individual average of 165 smelts caught daily.

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Speed-up System for Victory Garden Potatoes.

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Released by Central Press Association.

EARLY POTATOES for the Victory garden should be planted as soon as the soil can be properly worked. In some regions early planted potatoes run the risk of having their tops nipped by a late frost, but this usually is not serious, for the plants will grow again.

By the use of a "speed up" system, however, the outdoor planting of potatoes can be delayed several weeks until all danger of frost is past, without loss of time in potato growth. The "speed up" system involves cutting the potatoes into planting pieces, each peace with one or two "eyes." Next place the pieces of seed potatoes in flats, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Cover the potato pieces with sand and place the flat in a warm room, in sunlight if possible. The potato pieces will then form roots. In 10 days or two weeks they can be planted out of doors with safety and without loss of growing time. Do not water the potatoes in the flats, for this will promote soft, slender sprouts instead of the short, dark colored ones desired.

One of several methods of planting potatoes is to make a furrow seven inches deep, as illustrated. Then spread a fertilizer in the bottom of the trench and mix it well with the soil. Next, spread a layer of top soil, two or three inches thick, in the trench. Now plant the potatoes, setting each piece 10 or 12 inches apart, after which fill up the trench with top soil. As the roots grow downward they will be fed by the fertilizer.

FIRST THEFT

MADISON, Ind. —(U.P.)— Frank Vestal's farm home always had an open door latch—before meat rationing.

Vestal said he had kept his door unlocked for as long as he could remember, and no one ever entered his home to steal anything.

Last week thieves took four hams, six other cuts of meat, a can of lard and a bag of potatoes.

Zzz- -zzz
TODAY'S LONGER LAY-UPS give ordinary oil more time than ever to drain down from or dry off of cylinder and piston walls, leaving them without effective lubrication when you start up. While that oil is getting back on the job, real damage can be done.
*ACCORDING TO EXPERT OPINION, there can be as much wear on such a motor in the first minute as there would be in up to 200 miles of normal "warmed-up" driving. Wear you can't afford, today, with repair parts and mechanics so scarce . . . with transportation so vital.
V.E.P. LUBRICATION "STAYS PUT." This entirely new, entirely different oil has a "magnetic-like" action which makes it cling to cylinder walls and pistons for prolonged periods, even weeks. Effective lubrication is there, before you step on the starter.
TODAY'S DRIVING CONDITIONS are new, different. So is V.E.P. Alloyed-Oil. V.E.P. not only protects against "start-up" damage, but guards your motor against harmful sludge, carbon, varnish—all greater threats to your motor now that you're driving at lower speeds, taking shorter trips. Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, MAY 7, 1943.

Headline: "Rommel's Battered Forces are In Dire Straits," brings another rush for maps.

It's quite generally believed that "you can't fool all the people all the time"—but the politicians are satisfied with a majority.

It is being noted that the principal charge against Jeffers is that he thought it was intended that he should accomplish something in relieving the rubber shortage.

Year for Close-Home Vacations

VACATIONS at distant points are not favored for this war summer. But the reason for vacations still exists. Rest from past toil and anxieties, refreshment of body, mind and spirit for the work of coming months are still needed. It's not a good idea to plan to do without a vacation.

Most resorts expect a fair year. Patrons will not come from so far away as usual, but new visitors will be discovering their beauties and blessings. "The blossoms mean more this year" says Pennsylvania. "You can't ration Wisconsin" says that state of its "tree-lined lakes that gleam like jewels in the sun," its tumbling streams, wilderness trails, Indian country to explore. Michigan reports many early inquiries as to its resort facilities.

The old south has its historic loveliness and there are dude ranches in New York and New Jersey as well as in Montana, Wyoming and New Mexico. Evergreen Washington, sunny California, piney, palmy Florida, mountain and gulf states have cool and pleasant summer spots. Tree-shaded rivers of the plains offer quietness and peace. No state lacks for fun or interest.

It's a year to plan a pilgrimage to new views in near places, preferably in Ohio.

Sales Tax On Meals Continues

WHATEVER the impression of Ohio's Governor John W. Bricker may be outside of his home state, fellow-Republicans in the state legislature do not seem to have very high regard for his judgment, in the matter of proposed sales tax exemptions.

Democratic legislators stood on the sidelines while Republicans on the house taxation committee again throttled the measure intended to remove the sales tax on restaurant meals and prescription drugs.

True, the tax repeal on these two items would have saved taxpayers only between $5,000,000 and $8,000,000 a year, which may appear picayunish when considered in connection with the governor's vastly increased budget for the next two years—but even such a little thing as five million dollars isn't to be sneezed at, in these days of hard-going for taxpayers, and it had been hoped that the odd pennies now being paid as a tax on restaurant and hotel meals might be diverted to purchase of a few more war savings stamps.

But our legislators rule against any such saving to taxpayers. They understand about increasing taxes and expenditures but may have thought the governor was fooling when he proposed a tax reduction at the same time he presented a budget calling for much greater expenditures.

Something To Be Remembered

THERE was a passage in President Roosevelt's speech last Sunday night that might well be pasted up on the wall in millions of homes. Not because of questionable loyalty, but as a stimulating reminder of the dangerous position in which this nation now finds itself, and the need of unceasing vigilance and effort. Here it is:

"We have not yet won this war. We shall win this war only if we produce and deliver our total American effort on the high seas and on the battle fronts. That requires unrelenting, uninterrupted effort here on the home front. A stoppage (of coal or other essentials) even for a short time would involve a gamble with the lives of American soldiers and sailors and the future security of our whole people. It would involve an unwarranted, unnecessary and terribly dangerous gamble with our chances for victory."

It cannot be repeated too often that this is a world war, a total war, an "all-out" war, into which the nation must pour everything it has or can produce. The war could be lost by indifference or confused thinking or internal conflict. It could be half-lost by merely fighting the powers of evil to a standstill. The only safety lies in a clean victory, accomplished by the greatest effort this nation has ever put forth.

Plan 'Suburb' Inside Big City

A HOUSING development planned for New York city, to be constructed after the war, is described as "a suburb in a city," which means that it will have the advantages of playgrounds, landscaping, roadways, open courts and plenty of light and air for all the tenants, and yet be located in the heart of the city, in the 72-acre tract from First avenue to Avenue C, from East 14th to East 20th street.

The population in this area, which was 27,000 in 1920, has dwindled to about 11,000. Most of the land is now covered by "old tenement houses, stores, factories, garages and other small industrial buildings."—which description spells drabness and desolation. The new buildings will house 30,000 tenants in bright, new surroundings with every modern comfort.

Emphasis has been placed, in late years, on the "decentralization" of cities. This is all right when it means the scattering of industries, so that each factory, set in open country, has around it its own little city of well-built homes and apartments with plenty of room and fresh air. But when factories stay in town and people move out, too many former residential areas become slums for those who remain, and great amounts of time are lost by going back and forth to work. The "re-centralization" which tears down whole blocks of old shacks and replaces them with pleasant modern buildings, so arranged that children need not cross streets to go to school or play, is one of the coming methods for putting human as well as financial values back into city areas.

With "Dragon's Teeth" as the Pulitzer prize-winning novel, and "The Skin of Our Teeth" chosen as the prize drama, preference seems to have been for toothsome morsels—although emphasis on mastication may have been quite acci-dental.

There'll be a 40 per cent cut in the watermelon crop—which should greatly reduce the chances of getting a poor one—or even a good one, for that matter.

A former chess champion says he hasn't touched a chessman since 1935—which seems an unnecessarily long wait between moves, even in chess.

LET HISTORY FIND A GENTLER NAME THAN TREASON

Growing Capacity of 'Manpower'

By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—Every business man, and everyone else interested in post-war economic developments inside the United States, should read "Markets After the War," a department of commerce release written by S. Norris Livingston.

A tremendous amount of research has gone into this job, which, though brief, bristles with facts and calculations and is promised on the notion that the capitalistic system is to continue in this country.

It approaches the study from an intriguing angle—how much, in dollar values, can be produced in this country after the war every year, and goes on from there to consider whether markets ample to absorb this production, and thus provide full employment, are likely to be available.

From there it is but a step to what is necessary to MAKE them available, and at about that point it meshes in with studies by various groups of the problem of employment when peace reigns again.

It would be impossible in this space to outline or skeletonize Markets After the War. But a few random quotations may interest those who will not think it worth while to get a copy.

FOR INSTANCE on increases in the efficiency of labor:

"Over the twelve years, 1929 to 1941, the nation's output per man-hour of employment increased 34 per cent. This was at the rate of 2½ per cent per year compounded. There is ample evidence of about the same rate of gain during the preceding 30 years. It is likely to be accelerated rather than retarded by the war."

"By combining the increase in the labor force with the increase in output per man-hour, and assuming that people will want to work about the same hours as in 1940, the potential capacity of the available manpower in 1946 is almost 50 per cent greater than the total output in 1940. The dollar value of capacity output will depend on prices at that time. In 1940 prices the gross national product would be around 142 billion dollars as against 97 billion dollars in 1940. In 1942 prices it would be about 165 billion dollars. With a further increase in prices the dollar total could be still larger."

AND HERE'S one for those who have been hearing about the manpower shortage.

"This capacity is being proved during the war. With the employment of women and other additional war workers and increased hours of work JUST ABOUT OFFSETTING THE DIVERSION OF MANPOWER TO THE ARMED FORCES, the gross national product in the first quarter of 1943 is already at the annual rate of about 170 billion dollars, or 146 billion dollars in 1940 prices. The physical output of goods and services is already fifty per cent greater than in 1940 and before the end of the war the increase will be well over 50 per cent."

"It seems almost certain that postwar output must exceed the best pre-war year. If it should be no more than in 1940 there would be the nine million who were unemployed in 1940 plus the two and one-half million added to the civilian labor force between 1940 and 1946 plus eight million who would be displaced by improvements in efficiency over the six years—a total of over 19 million unemployed. Even with an average work week five hours shorter than in 1940 there would be more unemployed than the thirteen million in 1932."

If these few samples induce you to read the whole pamphlet, the writer thinks he will have earned your gratitude!

One Man's Opinion

—By WALTER KIERNAN

TRIPE is down a point and steak is up a point and that's balancing the scales with a feather if I ever saw it done before.

Tripe is that stuff in the back of the butcher's meat case that nobody wants and steak is that stuff nobody can get.

* * *

As I recall it, steak was a tender juicy meat which fell apart under the knife if properly done.

* * *

It was accompanied by things called "potatoes" and "butter" and you could get it in a restaurant, where the waiter wore a batwing collar and the hat check girl had gold teeth, for a maximum of $1.50.

* * *

At the butcher shop you couldn't carry home a dollar steak unless you had exceptional muscles in the forearm.

Now it is printed in the OPA point summaries for the sake of memory.

* * *

Thought for the day: Brains are down a point. They certainly are.

Dave Boone Says:

IT MAY or may not be significant that Bill Jeffers got a big hand from all present as he wound up his testimony before a senate committee on his tactics in the rubber situation. The applause came when he said, "I cannot go along with those who would restrict civilians to the barest necessities. When it gets down to the idea of forcing unnecessary restrictions on the American people you will have to get a new boy. I'm not going to do that job."

* * *

I ain't saying there are many unnecessary restrictions but I think too many smart boys on the restriction agencies just dote on extra rules, regulations, orders and commands, and that they would get better results if they had a little of the Jeffers point of view.

* * *

The Washington official who hesitates to make it hard for the other fellow is an exception.

Bill Jeffers doesn't yell, "Let's make another ruling," whenever a special problem requiring a little careful thought and patience arises.

* * *

I see where some New York Democrats want to change the name of Tammany hall. If they hadn't brought it up in print most people would have had a hard time recalling it.

How It Started

Aching Almanac.

This time of year, we are reminded that long before we had almanacs we had aching almanacs, nature's own barometer.

The allustion is to rheumatism, corns, arthritis, neuritis, sciatica and other physical phenomena or pathology of the human body which, when inclement weather is imminent, act up.

An early reference to this kind of forecasting is in John Taylor's Drinke and Welcome, published in 1637.

Timely Editorial

Nature Upsets the Rules.

Experienced farmers are smiling indulgently these cold May days over the troubles of us amateur city gardeners. They could have told us that any attempt to raise Victory Gardens with both eyes glued to the government pamphlet would result in many a false start.

The modern farmer, too, has found it well to do a little reading up now and then on how to raise crops, but he has not forgotten to keep one eye cocked at the sky and a finger wetted to the wind. In other words, he studies nature in the raw along with nature as described in the latest release from the Department of Agriculture, and so he does not make the mistake of taking too literally everything he reads.

City folks, however, have been swallowing the book whole, with the result that the peas and lettuce and tomatoes planted on the precise dates in the written instructions have been taking a beating from the unseasonable weather.

Fortunately, the growing season in these parts is long enough to make it possible for us to correct our error. We can put in fresh seeds and be pretty certain that they will grow to maturity.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Navy Slow to Adopt Helicopters As Means of Combatting U-Boats

WASHINGTON—More and more people on Capitol Hill and in the government are now wondering how much faith they can place in the navy's official announcements. Beginning with the announcement of losses at Pearl Harbor and coming down to Knox's recent unsuccessful argument with the Truman committee over submarine losses, the unfortunate effect has been to shake public confidence in navy communiques.

Latest incident was the speech of Capt. Leland Lovett, usually efficient chief of Navy Press Relations, at the National Newspaper Promotion association in New York in which he told how the navy was using helicopters to combat the submarine.

Capt. Lovett went into some detail regarding the use of helicopters over Atlantic sealanes. However, a careful check in army, navy and maritime circles discloses that not one helicopter is in use on U. S. ships today.

Furthermore, the platform on one ship from which a helicopter experiment will be made, has not yet been completed. The experiment should take place within two weeks.

Program Bungled.

CAPT. LOVETT was either badly misinformed, or else was pulling the chestnuts out of the fire for his superior officers who bungled the helicopter program. Or there may be one other explanation. The Truman committee report, criticizing the navy for not using helicopters, had been sent to the navy in advance and was about to be published. Lovett's speech, made one day before, might have been for the purpose of forestalling the Truman committee.

But all this, amazing as it is, is not the complete story. Inside fact is that the navy not only has not done anything about helicopters until the past few days, but actually has been opposing them, despite appeals from the maritime commission, the coast guard and to some extent from the army that helicopters are the only way to lick the submarine.

Admiral Howard Vickery, crack production expert of the maritime commission, was one of the first to see the advantages of the helicopter. Another was Capt. William Kossler of the coast guard. They pointed out that if merchant ships could carry their own "eyes" at sea, spotting submarines miles away, U. S. shipping could be made relatively safe.

Helicopters can hover over the sea at night, dropping flares to show up submarines on the surface. More and more subs are surfacing at night, cruising at top speed to close in on helpless merchant ships.

Spotting U-Boats.

THE maritime commission and coast guard also have pointed out that helicopters, when carried on merchant ships, can do exactly what the Germans have done, survey the sea from the air. Giant German bombers cruise over the North Atlantic, sight a convoy and then inform the sub packs where they are. Similarly, helicopters could sight subs and inform protecting destroyers where to look for them.

But despite these arguments, the navy as late as April 11, (just ten days before Capt. Lovett stated that the navy was actively using helicopters) sent a report to the lend-lease administration expressing opposition by naval airmen to helicopter manufacture by Henry Kaiser for the British. Nevertheless, Kaiser is going ahead with an important contract for the British.

Chief opponent of the helicopter has been Capt. Morton K. Fleming in the navy's bureau of aeronautics. Supposed to be the navy's rotary wing expert, he has consistently pooh-poohed the idea. This may be one reason why it didn't come to the attention of Admiral Ernie King, commander of the fleet, until recently.

Finally, King wrote a directive, in effect circumventing his own naval airmen, and asking the coast guard to dig into the question of helicopters. Fleming even had some talks with officials of the Sikorsky plant, chief manufacturer of helicopters, tending to discourage them regarding use by the navy.

As a result of all this, it has only been within the latter part of April that the decks have been cleared for what may be one of the major solutions to the menace of the submarine.

Capitol Chaff.

THE PALACE GUARD already has sharpened the knife to lopp off Henry Wallace if FDR runs for a 4th term. Said Harry Hopkins to a friend: "Why have a man on the ticket who can't carry his own state?" . . . Wonder whether Harry could carry his and Wallace's home state—Iowa? . . . The Irving Berlin show "This is the Army" will not go overseas. This was decided after much debate, largely because of transportation and the difficulty of staging the show near war areas. . . . When Under Secretary of War Patterson shot his news story on high-octane gas shortage (so criticized by D. Nelson) he did it without benefit of advice from his press experts.

Ickes and Coal.

THERE was one thing the coal operators didn't realize when they let the coal negotiations drag so long without making John L. Lewis an offer—namely, that the government itself would take over the mines and that their operation would be in the hands of tough, crochety, honest Harold Ickes.

Now they realize, however, that Ickes doesn't plan to give the mines up immediately after the settlement of the coal strike.

Just what his plans are no one knows, probably are not definitely formulated in his own mind. But it may well be that the mines will be kept in government hands for the duration.

This, of course, will mean a government subsidy for a part of the coal industry—not a revolutionary thing these days when the oil companies are getting paid nearly one million dollars a day by the government for the railroad haul of oil and gasoline to the Eastern seaboard.

One trouble with the coal industry has been that wages have to lag behind to keep pace with the least efficient coal mines. Some mines make huge profits, others, where the coal is deep or thin, are right on the margin.

If Ickes keeps wartime control over the coal mines it will mean that the profitable mines will pay the deficits and higher wages of the marginal mines. Some people have the idea that this was one of the things John L. Lewis had in the back of his head.

Stumbling March Through Foreign Darkness Follows Brief Rest On Tunisian Front.

Editor's Note: This is the fourth of a series of dispatches in which Ernie Pyle relates his experiences at the front in Tunisia with a crack American infantry unit.

FRONT LINES BEFORE MATEUR—(By Wireless)—Rest periods for our front-line troops in Tunisia are few and far between. And when they do come they are only for a day or two, and subject to being ended at any moment.

The infantry battalion that I've attached myself to had its rest cut short just after dark on the second evening. Word came to move again into the lines, which were only a mile and a half away.

We had been dug in on a high, rocky ridge. German shells pounded continuously on the back side of the ridge, just a hundred yards off. The whole solid mountain seemed to tremble with each blast, but of course it didn't actually. And we were perfectly safe.

Our view there was beautiful and majestic. Yet I personally was not reluctant to leave. For we had discovered that our ridge was inhabited by a frightening menagerie of snakes, two-legged lizards, scorpions, centipedes, overgrown chiggers and man-eating ants.

Our battalion marched in two sections. The first left early, with order to attack a certain forward hill at 3 a. m. The other half was to start after midnight, reach a certain protected wadi before dawn, dig itself in and stand by for use whenever needed. I went with the second batch.

The men weren't upset about going into the line again so soon. They just accepted it. They feel they have already done more than their share of this war's fighting, but there is in their manner a touchingly simple compliance with whatever is asked of them.

At 1 a. m. we were ready to go. Blanket rolls and personal gear were left behind. I carried only my mackinaw and small hand shovel.

In columns of twos we plowed down a half-mile slope waist-high in wild grass. The slope was full of big bomb craters. We had to feel for them with our feet and walk around them. There were big rocks hidden in the grass, and soldiers would stumble and fall down awkwardly in their heavy gear, and get up cussing.

Finally we hit a sort of path and fell into a single line of march. It was very slow at first, for we were crowding the last stragglers of the first section. For long periods we would stop for some unexplained reason and just sit on the ground.

The man ahead of me, Pvt. Lee Hawkins of Everett, Pa., had a 50-pound radio strapped onto his back, plus two boxes of ammunition. How he kept on his feet in that rough sightless march I don't know.

After a couple of hours the route ahead seemed to clear up. We walked briskly in single file. You had to keep your eyes on the ground and watch every step.

The moon came up, but it was behind a great black cloud and gave only a little light. We talked some, but not much.

We made a couple of brief unexplained stops, and then suddenly word came down the column: "No more talking. Pass it back."

From then on we marched in silence except for the splitting crash of German artillery ahead and of ours behind. The artillery of both sides were firing almost continuously. There would be the heavy blast of the guns, then an eerie rustle from each shell as it sped unseen across the sky far above our heads. It gave the night a strange sense of greatness.

As a first-timer I couldn't help but feel a sort of exaltation from this tense, stumbling march through foreign darkness up into the unknown.

IT DID have its lighter touch, if you were inclined to hunt for a laugh. One soldier with a portable radio had been trying since early evening to get contact with our leading column. He was having static trouble, and kept walking around trying various locations all night long. Wherever you turned wherever you stopped, you could always hear this same voice, gradually growing pitiful in its vain quest, calling softly:

"Lippman to Howell. Come in, Howell."

As the night wore on and this voice kept up its persistent wandering and fruitless calling for its mate it got to be like a scene out of a Saroyan play, and I had a private giggle over it.

SHELLS from both sides kept going far over our heads. They were landing miles away. Then all of a sudden they weren't. With the quickness of an auto accident a German shell screamed toward us.

Instinct tells you, from the timbre of the tone, how near a shell is coming to you. Our whole column fell flat automatically and in unison.

The shell landed with a frightening blast 200 yards to our right. We got up and started, and it happened again, this time to our left.

I felt weak all over, and all the others had the creeps too.

Then off to the left we heard German machine-gun fire. You can always tell it from American machine-gun because it is so much faster. Word was passed down the line for us to squat down. We sat silently on our haunches for a minute, and then on another order we all crept over into some grass and lay hidden there for about five minutes. Then we started on.

We got to where we were going half an hour before dawn. It was an outcropping of big white rocks, covering several acres, just back of the rise where the earlier half of our unit was already fighting.

The commanding officer told us to find a good place among the rocks, get well scattered, and dig in immediately. He didn't have to do any urging. Machine guns were crashing a few hundred yards off. Now and then a bullet would ricochet down among us.

The order went around to dig only with shovels, for the sound of picks hitting rocks might give us away to the Germans. We talked only in low voices. The white rocks were like ghosts and gave an illusion of moving when you looked at them.

I picked out an L-shaped niche formed by two knee-high rocks, and began shoveling out a hole in front of them. At dawn we were all dug in, and the artillery had increased to a frenzy that seemed to consume the sky.

We had now been without sleep for 24 hours, and we lay in our holes and slept wearily, oblivious of the bedlam around us and the heat of the bright early sun.

Just as I fell off to sleep I heard a low voice just behind my rock, pleading, it seemed to me now, a little hoarsely, but still determinedly:

"Come in, Howell, Come in, Howell."

BETA KAPPA TAU WILL HAVE BENEFIT BRIDGE

Miss Louise Enderle Heads Committee In Charge of May 18 Function; Regular Meeting Presided Over By Mrs. John Baki.

A BENEFIT BRIDGE, the proceeds of which are to be given to the local chapter of the American Red Cross, was planned Thursday night at the regular meeting of Beta Kappa Tau sorority. The meeting, presided over by Mrs. John Baki, president, was held in the mezzanine of the Madison theater.

The benefit bridge, on the non-progressive plan, will be held May 18 at 8 p. m. at the American Legion home. Club prizes and individual table prizes will be given. Tickets for the benefit may be purchased from any sorority member.

The committee for this function is headed by Miss Louise Enderle, with Miss Eleanor Star and Mrs. Lee Harper assisting.

Miss Rose Huck is chairman of the committee for the May social meeting. Other committee members include Mrs. Herbert Palmer, Mrs. Jay Kissling, Miss Maxine Rimmer and Miss Wilma Sauder. The date of that meeting will be announced by invitation.

During the business meeting, a treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Peter Merschdorf.

The next meeting of Beta Kappa Tau sorority is scheduled for May 20, 7:30 p. m., in the mezzanine of the Madison theater.

W. S. C. S. Has Guest Speaker From Argentina

Mrs. Angelo Barbieri was guest speaker at a luncheon held yesterday by the Women's Society of Christian Service of the First Methodist church with Circle 4 in charge.

Mrs. Barbieri compared the customs in her native country Argentina, to the customs here. Mrs. Barbieri and Mrs. Willis James conducted a question and answer program.

Mrs. O. G. Place conducted the business session. Devotions were in charge of Mrs. John Shook. Mrs. Blaine Johnson, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Maude Butterfield and Mrs. Dean Eckert who played a group of piano duets Their selections included "Two Guitars," "Russian Folk Song," "Gavotti," "Lasorella."

The meeting was closed with a prayer by Mrs. E. G. Corwin The next meeting will be held at the church on June 3.

The Gibson Girl Returns In a 1943 Model

SHIRTWAIST, 1900: Authentic outfit from the Museum of Costume Art.

SHIRTWAIST, 1943: Gay printed crepe, tucked into a brown shantung skirt. This is the costume picked by the New York Dress Institute for a modern Gibson Girl.

By DOROTHY ROE
(AP) Fashion Editor)

Remember the Gibson Girl? She's the one who was always being invited (in song) for a ride—on a bicycle built for two, in a merry Oldsmobile or in that new flying machine. And she always wore a trim, starched and beruffled shirtwaist with her Merry Widow hat and her modest ankle-length skirt.

Well, the Gibson Girl is back with a bang, right in the middle of World war 2. She's complete with pompadour, demure smile and, most significant, that immortal shirtwaist.

Not since the Nonchalant Nineties have well-bred young women strolled down Fifth avenue in waist and skirt, without benefit of jacket. But this spring it's considered not only correct, but downright fashionable.

You'll be seeing the Gibson Girl shirtwaist in many versions this year—in sheer lace-trimmed batiste, in printed crepe, in linen and lawn. You'll see it worn for everything from business to badminton, croquet to cocktails.

And, as often as not, you'll find it teamed with that other essential item of the Nineties, the decorative parasol.

GO BACK TO JOBS

Mrs. Charles Ray Speaks At Mother-Daughter Tea

MRS. CHARLES RAY from the department of public welfare, and the Mansfield Story Telling league was the speaker at the Mother-Daughter banquet of the United Brethren church Thursday night, held at the church at 6:30 p. m. Mrs. Ray told stories concerning "Mothers of the Bible."

The welcoming address of the evening was given by Mrs. Leo Jones, after the program was opened by group singing of "Faith of Our Mothers." The address was followed with a poem entitled "Mother" by Miss Alice Nipper.

Miss Peggy Holmes offered a prayer for mothers. A response was given with a prayer for daughters, by Mrs. Raymond Holmes.

"Mother McCrea" was sung by Mrs. William Friend Mrs. Cleo Long gave a reading entitled "Betty at the Baseball Game," after which a piano selection was played by Miss Naomi Johnson.

Two accordion selections were given by Miss Eileen Shuler.

Mrs. Russel Indorf presented gifts to the oldest and youngest mother present. Mrs. Fisher received the gift for the oldest mother; Mrs. William Schuff the gift of the youngest mother. The first lady of the church, Mrs. James Boyer was also given a gift.

Group singing of "Blest Be The Tie That Binds' closed the program.

SETS RECORD

TROY, N. Y.—(UP)—After 47 years of service, working an average of 12 hours a day, John W. Nugent, assistant treasurer of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, has resigned.

Nugent had only one vacation—a week in June, 1914, when he married Julia Quinn of Troy—and only one absence, a few days two years ago when he was ill with a cold. Now, 70 years of age, he thinks his exceptional health may be due to the fact that he was always too busy to worry about himself and for many years has taken long walks daily.

SIGMA KAPPA GAMMA GIVE MOTHERS' DAY TEA

Business Meeting Held at Home of Miss Lois Smith; Sorority Paper Distributed to Members By Month's Editors.

FINAL PLANS for the Mother's Day Tea, to be held in the Colonial Room on Park avenue west, Sunday afternoon, May 9, by the Sigma Kappa Gamma sorority were presented by Mrs. Richard James, when the sorority held its regular business meeting at the home of Miss Lois Smith, 40 Douglas avenue, Thursday night.

Mrs. James will be assisted in arrangements for the tea by Miss Martha Phillipon and Miss Helen Desterhaft.

The May issue of the Tattler, the sorority's paper, was distributed by the editors for this month, Miss Smith and Miss Vivian Walter. Editors appointed for June by Miss Dorothy Blackstone, the president, are Miss Naomi Velzy and Mrs. William Abele.

A progressive letter was written to Mrs. Raymond Jurgens, who is residing with her soldier husband in Houston, Tex. A letter was read from Mrs. Robert Rhodes of San Diego, Calif.

Refreshments were served by the hostess at the close of the business meeting. The next meeting scheduled for Sigma Kappa Gamma will be held at the home of Mrs. William Abele, 110 Willow street, Thursday, May 20.

Dinner Given By Tri Gamma

Mrs. Hedges Princehorn, Linden road, entertained members of the Gamma chapter of Tri Gamma sorority with a Mother's day dinner Thursday night.

Dinner was served at small tables centered with spring flowers. Plant favors in old fashioned China ladies were used as favors for the mothers. Pastel shades were used for decorations throughout the home.

The committee in charge of the event included Mrs. Robert Braillier, chairman: Mrs. Dale Uhlich, Mrs. J. McKnight, Mrs. James Henderson and Mrs. Princehorn.

The Gamma chapter's next meeting will be a business meeting at the sorority rooms, 9 South Main street.

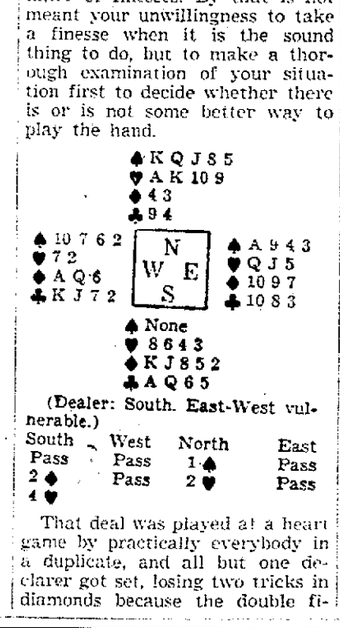
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

BE A FINESSE HATER

If you are going to have idiosyncracies regarding bridge, certain things you specially like to do and others which you try to avoid, one of the best is to be a hater of finesses. By that is not meant your unwillingness to take a finesse when it is the sound thing to do, but to make a thorough examination of your situation first to decide whether there is or is not some better way to play the hand.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♦	Pass	2 ♥	Pass

That deal was played at a heart game by practically everybody in a duplicate, and all but one declarer got set, losing two tricks in diamonds because the double finesse failed, one in clubs because that finesse lay wrong, and another in trumps. The one man who made the contract did not try either finesse. He was the finesse hater, saw an alternative way to go for his contract, and tried it.

Against him East led the heart Q because the bidding sounded like a cross-ruff situation—a risky lead which would have cost him a trick if the A or K had been at his left, but which cost him nothing, as both honors were at his right.

North decided to try to set up a fifth spade. After winning the trump lead, he put down the spade K, the A covered, and the trick was ruffed in dummy. The heart 6 to the K put him in his own hand to lead the spade Q and J for club discards, then the 8, which he ruffed, being happy to see the suit divide evenly.

Next he led the diamond K—a play which would be high treason, lese majeste, or what have you to a habitual finesser. West took it, and then didn't know how to come back. Actually, anything he did would be disastrous. After puzzling, he scored his diamond Q and led to the J, giving North a discard of his club 4. The club A, ruff of the club 5 with the heart 10, spade 5 to force the heart J, and the heart 9 to ruff the club return gave him his contract.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, May 8.

A particularly lively and exciting day is forecast from the predominant planetary vibrations, albeit much of this activity may demand regulation, vigilance and shrewdness. There may be encouragement for attacking new and possibly spectacular projects, inaugurating fresh programs for advancing old interests in which the public or community may be lucratively concerned. Adhering to sensible codes, in all contacts, may avert danger or regret.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year of much liveliness and all around activity, with new, fresh or novel interests under excellent impetus for success or probably unexpected achievement. There may be menaces of illicit doings, with intrigue, duplicity and subtle snares lying in wait, and the judgment may be too snappy or emotions erratic for dependability. Keep sane and sensible.

EVERY DAY IS Mother's Day
AT PENNEY'S!
To the millions of American mothers we speak today with feeling. Bringing up a family is the most important job in the world, and the hardest, and Penney's well knows it!
So to the mothers of babies—of school age youngsters—of fighting men—we speak! If your problems never seem to end—if the war has served to enlarge them—remember, many of them can be solved at Penney's.
For the Penney platform has always been to simplify mother's family shopping job—to treat mother's family budget with courtesy and care.
You will find at your Penney store the most serviceable Socks, Shirts and Shorts; the best in Bootees, Blankets and Bonnets; the thriftiest in Towels, Thimbles and Thread; the first and finest in Fashions, Fabrics and Footwear.
All these—and hundreds more! Not in the same wide selection as in other years, but the very best war conditions make possible.
At Penney's, we have never made deliveries, or carried charge accounts, or operated costly stores. The economies made possible by this policy result in low prices.
As for profits, every Penney purchase has two; a big profit to the purchaser in savings, and a small profit to Penney's to carry on its business.
And so, Mother, on your day we ask you to believe that we run our stores so that every day is Mother's Day at Penney's.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

STOCKHOLM—(By Wireless)—One reason for the unpopularity of the Axis in Sweden is Germany's continued refusal to let Sweden resume limited shipments of foodstuffs and other urgent supplies from the outside world.

This attitude on the part of Germany does not seem to make much sense, from the Nazi viewpoint, because it is aggravating the anti-Nazi feeling in Sweden without getting Hitler anything in return. The refusal of the Nazis to permit resumption of shipments into Sweden from the outside world is attributed by some to the natural bullying tactics of the Nazis toward their weaker neighbors, but by others to the fact that German officials are unable to agree among themselves—some favoring the Swedish case while others oppose it.

Clapper

Unless this traffic is resumed soon, Sweden will be compelled to tighten food rationing still more. The present situation, which is tight but not critical, might easily become extremely severe.

When the war began Sweden was caught in a double blockade. The Germans and the British both blockaded all traffic. Later, after earnest appeals, the Swedes were allowed to operate a limited number of ships in and out of Gothenburg, under safe conduct, to bring oil cake, cotton, wool, leather, coffee, tea and vitamin concentrates. Early this year Germany suspended this agreement. No ships are now permitted to come in from outside.

Thus Sweden's only source of outside supply is now through Germany, which is unable to supply much. She does get some oranges from Spain, some fertilizer nitrates from Germany, and some oil cake from Rumania.

Minister of Supply Axel Gjores says that unless the Gothenburg safe-conduct shipping is resumed Sweden must cut her food rations. I saw in his office the food supply that is allowed to one adult per week. It was laid out on a small shelf. Except for the bread, it seemed scarcely more than one day's food for a husky American youth. The meat for a whole week was on one small plate—a piece of sausage about the size of a hot dog, two strips of bacon, a piece of steak smaller than your hand, a couple of slices of baloney.

People are switching to a milk diet. Consumption of milk has doubled since the war started, although the number of cattle has declined 15 per cent. The supply of drinking milk has been increased by cutting cheese and butter production and abolishing cream production.

Vitamins are badly needed. The government is going into a big program of producing vitamins from carrots. This product, called carrotine, will be mixed with butter.

Cellulose from wood pulp is going into everything. It is used for fodder, although the Swedish pigs refuse to eat the stuff, and you can't blame them, because it looks and tastes like shredded blotting paper. Cellulose and leather scraps are being mixed for synthetic leather, which will be on the market in two months. This can be used for resoling shoes, of which a person can now buy only one pair in 18 months. Beer is diluted down to under 3 per cent, to save barley. The Swedish national drink, aquavit, is being made of cellulose instead of potatoes. Soap is so short an adult gets a piece one-third the size of a "guest" Ivory or Lux bar once a week, for toilet purposes and laundry combined. Yet Sweden has no food queues. She is far better off than England and other belligerent countries. There is some black-market activity, but cooperatives are so widespread that marketing is all pretty much under control. No coffee is available, but a palatable substitute is made from grinding beets and acorns—and probably wood shavings. The Swedes are such good coffee makers that they make this concentration about as potable as a bad English cook would produce with good coffee.

PREDICTS OHIO VOTERS TO KILL TAX ON MEALS

Restaurant Group Officer Plans To Submit Repeal at Next Election.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—The repeal of the sales tax law on restaurant food in Ohio by constitutional amendment in the November 1943 elections was forecast today by Robert R. Williams, executive secretary of the Ohio State restaurant association.

Thus the citizens of Ohio would remove the sales tax on restaurant food just as they relieved themselves of the tax burden on food bought for home consumption in the Martin Davey administration

"We will present the case to the association next week," Williams announced. "In all probability the amendment would also carry a removal of sales tax on prescription medicine. I predict the people of Ohio will overwhelmingly remove this tax burden."

Officials of the secretary of state's office informed Williams that it would take 179,654 signatures on a petition to be filed 60 days before the November elections, in order to have the constitutional amendment proposal placed on the ballot.

One of Gov. John W. Bricker's major proposals in his third inaugural address to the 95th Ohio general assembly, the bill to remove sales tax on restaurant food and prescription medicine was immediately passed by the senate but did not even reach the floor of the overwhelmingly Republican house of representatives for a vote.

The bill was killed in the taxation committee after numerous sales tax repeal amendments on such things as the Bible and the American flag were added to it

Governor Bricker approved of the association plan to submit the constitutional amendment to the voters.

Rep. Chester Early (R-Lucas) has said that he is against the sales tax repealer because the tax only affects 25 per cent of the people. Williams commented.

"Any tax affecting only 25 per cent of the people," he declared, "is an unjust and unfair tax."

Williams said that restaurant men have reported to him that the public is "very irate" over their representatives failing to give them consideration on this measure.

SOLE SURVIVOR TELLS STORY OF ICELAND CRASH

Ohioan, Saved By Rain, Pinned Under Plane Wreckage For 26 Hours.

(By International News Service)

REYKJAVIK, Iceland—The sole survivor of the plane crash which killed Lieut. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, commander of American forces in the European theater, and 13 others told today how he lay pinned by the wreckage for 26 hours on a bleak hillside.

Sgt. George A. Eisel, rear gunner of Columbus, O., revealed in the hospital where he is recuperating that the crash in mist-shrouded Iceland was the second he had survived. The first crash occurred when his plane was downed in combat in North Africa and three crew members died.

When the plane crashed at 4:15 p. m. Monday all those aboard the ill-fated Liberator bomber who died were thrown clear of the wreckage, he said, but he was pinned in the rear turret.

"I thought I was a goner when fire started in the wreckage," said Eisel who has a wife in Columbus.

"Rain and sleet quickly put out the fire and saved me. I was awfully cold pinned down on the mountain slope more than a day in the wind and rain.

"I never lost consciousness but was very tired and pained."

It took a rescue party an hour to extricate him from the smashed plane which also carried Bishop Adna Wright Leonard of the Methodist Episcopal church to his death.

His eyebrows and lashes were singed by flames and he suffered bruises to his leg but otherwise was not seriously injured

Eisel said that visibility was only 40 feet when the Liberator plane approached Iceland.

He revealed that Gen. Andrews, who long held a pilot rating, was at the controls Later the captain piloted the ship, he said.

The gunner, besides seeing action in North Africa, has participated in bombing raids over France, Germany and Italy, and is the recipient of many decorations.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

TUCSON, Ariz.—So much capital has been made of the famous promise of the big unions to waive labor's right to strike for the duration of the war that the facts and the record should be examined.

This pledge has been violated not once but a hundred times in war plants large and small by unions of the AFL and the CIO and notoriously by the United Mine Workers. Like most union undertakings it was worthless in the first place because unions have no personality or entity and thus no responsibility. The unions were granted certain advantages and special consideration in return for the promise not to strike and the record of strikes in violation of the pledge puts them in the position of having obtained such favors by fraud. Under our laws, however, no penalty may be exacted from any union for striking nor may any individual be punished for calling a strike even though the stoppage be caused by the arbitrary order of one man or a committee and without a vote of the rank and file.

Pegler

I am not arguing that in all cases the employers were in the right and that the workers had no grievance. But I do point out that under the labor policy of the government an employer may be quickly and firmly called to account and compelled to adjust the problem. The same policy almost invariably pleads with and placates the union bosses even though a referendum to the rank and file might show that the workers would like to repudiate these officers.

To weigh the value of William Green's undertaking on behalf of all the unions of the AFL which have flouted his promise again and again and again, as President Roosevelt would say, it is necessary only to refer to his own reiterated explanation that he has no power over the autonomous national unions and their constituent locals and councils.

When, about six years ago, it first dawned on the public through newspaper exposes that at least four of Mr. Green's big national unions were run by ex-convicts and that racketeers were using unionism as a satisfactory substitute for bootlegging since repeal, he issued a public statement in which he explained that the AFL was a loose confederation of independent and autonomous unions and that he was powerless to interfere in their affairs even to drive out predatory rascals who were robbing and persecuting the workers.

In that, he was technically correct but the fact remained that a man honestly devoted to the cause of unionism and with a heart sympathetic with the workers could have exerted great influence by snubbing the more notorious racketeers This Green did not do. On the contrary he was careful to show the same consideration to the notorious double-dealer, Joe Fay, of the operating engineers, who is both a union boss and an employer of operating engineers in his role of contractor, that he showed to any upright union official. In a St. Louis case, Green upheld a gang of spectacular thieves against the downtrodden rank and file who had risked their very lives to revolt.

So, taking Green at his word when he said he was powerless to interfere in the affairs of an autonomous national or local union, we observe that he had no authority to promise that there would be no strikes.

It has been only by good luck and public decorum that we have escaped some dreadful experiences on the home front since Pearl Harbor. President Roosevelt, in his radio address on the strike of John L. Lewis' coal miners, a strike contrived by a devious little scheme, referred to expressions which he had received from men wounded in the war and returned home. I do not know whether such sentiments are a recent development in his fan mail but I do know that for more than a year I have been receiving angry letters from fighting men and from the parents and wives of fighters, some of whom are so bitter against all unionism now that they would indorse capital punishment for unioneers who order strikes in war industries All of them are indignant that Green, Philip Murray, the president of the CIO, and Lewis should be accorded such importance.

Congress seems to be the only hope for unionism and the very proposals which the unioneers and the administration condemn as anti-labor bills would save labor from the consequences of the folly, stupidity and incompetence of the national leadership of the unions.

SHOW JAP FILMS

Madison, Ohio To Have Captured 'Pix' of Enemy Attack.

Captured Japanese pictures of the raid on Pearl Harbor and the siege of Corregidor come to the screen of the Ohio and Madison theaters Saturday and continue through Tuesday.

The pictures show the Japanese aircraft carriers crossing the Pacific to carry out their destruction Subsequent scenes show bombs exploding on American runways and hangars, destroying 97 American planes.

The Japs are shown swarming in for the kill on Corregidor after disease and starvation forced the American surrender.

Wednesday's News-Journal carried two of the pictures captured from the Japanese of the Pearl Harbor attack, showing Japanese aircraft carriers and Japanese pilots running to their planes.

SINGLE AUTO TAG FAVORED

Senate Passes Bill To Issue Metal Plate For Rear of Cars In 1944.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Ohio motorists may sport a single new license plate on their cars in 1944, instead of two or a windshield sticker, if the house goes along with the senate on the proposal.

The upper chamber unanimously passed a measure yesterday permitting automobile and truck owners to drive next year with a single license tag. The bill now goes to the house.

Senator Frank E. Whittemore, Republican floor leader, said information received by the state bureau of motor vehicles indicated the government would make available enough metal for one 1944 tag a car.

State enforcement officers indicated when steel shortages began to develop that single plates would be displayed on the rear of motor vehicles if only one were used.

Because of steel scarcity, motorists were issued windshield stickers authorizing use this year of 1942 licenses.

The senate also passed a house-approved measure authorizing reissue, without examination, to service men of any license to practice a profession or trade held by them prior to entering the armed forces.

The house approved a bill to allow service men to hunt, fish and trap without a license. The measure now goes to the senate.

Up and Down THE STREET

Mansfield housewives have contributed nearly three tons of kitchen fats to the war program during the past two months, and OCD war salvage officials believe the city will make a better showing in May. A Wapakoneta, O., firm which buys the fat reported today that Mansfield collected 2,893 pounds of fat in April, only four pounds less than in March. The city's Girl Scouts are scheduled to begin a salvage campaign about the middle of the month, making house-to-house calls to collect kitchen grease The concerted drive is expected to boost collections. The fats are used in the manufacture of explosives and munitions.

Latest thing in convoys is a navy convoy across a busy street. Yesterday two lassies from Mansfield Business Training school went to Central park to spend a few minutes basking in the balmy breezes and were returning to their classes when they were stopped by a "Company Halt!" in no uncertain terms. Turning around they saw two sailors who immediately took up positions one beside each of the girls and announced, "We'll convoy you across the street." Once on the other side thanks and good byes were said and the two sailors and the two students went their separate ways.

Further proof that pupils in Mansfields elementary schools are doing their part to speed victory comes from West Fifth street school. Principal W. W. Blauser announced this morning that $2,500 worth of bonds had been purchased by pupils of that school so far during the school year. Eight $25 bonds were sold last Friday. The school has averaged $100 per week in the purchase of war stamps. Sales are handled by home room teachers

PRISONERS TO GET TOBACCO

Relatives Will Use Special Labels To Send Packages To War Captives.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The WPB today announced that a program has been worked out by several government agencies and the American Red Cross under which relatives and friends can send cigarets, cigars, smoking tobacco or chewing tobacco to identified war prisoners and civilian internees held by Germany and Italy.

The plan will be extended to include such persons held by Japan whenever facilities are available for routing the products to them, said the WPB's beverages and tobacco division.

Under the program, the prisoner of war information bureau of the provost marshal general's office in the war department will regularly issue without application two tobacco labels every 60 days to the next-of-kin of each prisoner and internee The relative or anyone else to whom the label is given by the recipient can in turn forward the labels, with a money order, to a tobacco manufacturer, who will send the cigarets or other tobacco to the prisoner or person interned. No postage or federal excise tax will have to be paid.

The first labels will be mailed to next-of-kin about May 10.

Each label is good for three cartons of cigarets, or 12 packages or one carton of two-ounce packages of smoking tobacco, 100 cigars, or approximately 24 ounces of chewing tobacco The gift packages have been standardized to contain only one item.

Huge Subsidy Favored to Hold Line In Living Costs

LEADERS SEE PAYMENTS AS BEST WAY OUT

Administration Would Use 2 Billion of Taxpayers Funds Annually.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Administration quarters today viewed an all out federal subsidy program—perhaps involving a $2,000,000,000 annual outlay—as the only method of fulfilling President Roosevelt's order to "hold-the-line" on the cost of living.

The tremendous pressure on the price structure was significantly demonstrated by OPA's action, with the concurrence of Economic Czar James F. Byrnes, in raising bread prices in the state of Utah, Fargo, N. D., and Moorehead, Minn.

A relatively small case, the incident was marked by Byrnes' admission that the price increase was "permissible" under the president's order to prevent closure of bakeries in the affected areas and a consequent bread shortage.

Similar pressure for upward price adjustments has been reported in regard to asparagus, strawberries and many other products, with a disastrous slump in production threatened as the only alternative to immediate relief.

Producers contend that price ceilings cannot be held, much less rolled back, because of higher labor, transportation, distribution and other production costs. The situation prevails throughout the whole cost of living structure, it was said.

Federal subsidies have been advanced in some quarters as the only solution to the problem, a program under which the government would absorb the higher charges at the producing and wholesaling level while holding down retail prices to consumers.

Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown suggested a subsidy as an alternative to the one cent per loaf bread price increase. Two days ago he rejected a request for a 35 cents per barrel increase in crude oil prices, suggesting instead that the government finance drilling for new oil resources.

Despite congressional opposition to subsidies and refusal of the legislative body to appropriate funds, they are currently used on a small scale. The Commodity Credit Corporation finances support price programs for several vegetable crops, for wool and other items.

For a short time several months ago, the government subsidized oil deliveries to the east coast shortage area, but later withdrew its aid and authorized an increase in prices. Coffee and sugar shipments to some areas now are being subsidized.

MEET IN CITY

Methodist Church Delegates To Hear Dr. Warfield.

A talk by Dr. G. P. Warfield, district superintendent of Methodist churches in the Warsaw, Poland area, before the outbreak of war, will highlight the annual conference of the Methodist churches of the Mansfield district this afternoon at First Methodist church.

Dr. Warfield will tell of his experiences in German concentration camps and will outline the church activities in Poland.

The Women's Society of Christian Service met this morning at Central Methodist church at which time Mrs. John Seward, of Cambridge, conference president, outlined work of the society.

PRICES FIXED IN RESTAURANTS

Freeze Announced to Cover Dayton District.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — The regional Office of Price Administration today ordered the freezing of Dayton area restaurant prices on foods and all beverages at the highest levels charged by establishments in the base period of April 4 to 10.

Effective tomorrow, the order is permanent and applies to restaurants, hotels, delicatessens, soda fountains, boarding houses and all other food and beverage establishments operating in Montgomery county, the OPA said.

The order specifies that neither quality nor quantity of food served may be changed.

PARENTS ATTEND JOINT CONCERT

More than 250 parents attended the program presented by the John Simpson and Johnny Appleseed bands Wednesday night in the Johnny Appleseed auditorium.

Highlights of the program were a trombone solo by Paul Jackson; trumpet solo by Donald Adams; clarinet quartet composed of Doris Jacobs, Ruth Schaal, Nancy Osbun and Caralou Castor; several numbers by Joan Brandt, and a piano solo by Kathryn Donley.

The two bands also presented several novelty numbers.

STILL STRIKING

Employes Hold Up Publishing of News at Massillon.

MASSILLON — (INS) — Fifteen striking employes of the Massillon Evening Independent, the city's only newspaper, continued suspension of city news as they refused to go to work in the composing room today.

Raymond C. Baker, president of the Massillon Typographical union, said that no further negotiation meetings had been scheduled in the wage dispute which culminated in strike yesterday.

SUB SKIPPER GIVES LIFE TO SAVE CRAFT, MEMBERS OF CREW

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — A submarine skipper whose last galalnt order, "Take her down," sealed his own death sentence was credited by the navy today with successful attacks on three Japanese ships, the last of which the sub rammed in a dramatic night fight for life.

It was in this final action somewhere in the distant Pacific that the officer rode the conning tower of his submerging submarine to his death rather than expose the craft or crew to enemy gunfire.

He had been wounded a few moments before and knew that the time required to get him safely into the submarine might mean the sub's destruction.

For this sacrifice, Commander Howard W. Gilmore, 40, of New Orleans, La., has been awarded posthumously the Congressional medal of honor by President Roosevelt.

The story was told by the navy today, partly in a communique and partly in an accompanying account of the final fight.

The communique, which also reported American air raids against Japanese positions in the Central Solomon Islands, listed the three last ships attacked successfully by the submarine under Gilmore's command as a medium cargo ship, sunk; a gunboat, damaged and probably sunk; a medium cargo ship, damaged.

"Commander Gilmore gave his life in the action against the gunboat listed above," the communique said. "As he lay on the bridge wounded by enemy machine gunfire he ordered his submarine submerged so save it from destruction."

RANKS THIRD

Mansfield OCD Rates High In Speakers' Bureau Talks.

Mansfield's OCD war services speakers' bureau ranked third in Ohio in April in the number of talks given before organizations and clubs on the civilian defense program, Mrs. John Pierce, chairman of the Mansfield bureau, was informed today.

Sixteen speakers in the Mansfield bureau gave 35 talks during the month on salvage drives, Victory gardens, manpower, and other affiliated subjects.

Cleveland and Cincinnati, the state's largest cities, were the only ones that topped Mansfield in the number of informative talks. Cleveland reported 200 and Cincinnati, 55.

WIN BANNER

Texas Pupils Awarded Minute Man Flag.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — A new banner flew proudly under old glory today at Corpus Christi school.

For Corpus Christi, a Columbus parochial, was the first school in the city to be awarded the "Minute Man Flag" by the treasury department. To receive the award 90 per cent of a school's pupils are required to participate in war bond and stamp purchases. Purchases by pupils at Corpus Christi totaled more than $27,000 in five months.

12 FLEE FIRE

Damage Set at $50,000 in Cleveland Blaze.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Damage was reckoned at $50,000 today after fire swept a two-story business and apartment building on Cleveland's southeast side, forcing 12 persons to flee.

Five children and three adults safely made their way from second-floor suites through dense smoke that enveloped five firemen on the building's roof and obscured for a time ladders by which they sought to return to the street. Four adults were forced to leave first-floor stores.

MISSES POINT

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — Carl Dunn, 28, negro, refused to permit the court to appoint an attorney to defend him on an unarmed robbery charge.

As his own witness he made a five minute statement to the court. Judge Cecil J. Randall sentenced him to the penitentiary, pointing out that Dunn forgot to mention he wasn't guilty.

POLICE PROBING 4 BURGLARIES IN CITY OVER NIGHT

School Loses Movie Machine, Film; Restaurant and Park Shelter Entered.

Police and the sheriff's department today were investigating a series of burglaries last night in the Mansfield area in which loot totaling more than $100 was obtained at a school, suburban restaurant, park shelter house, and a private home.

The biggest loss was reported at the Bushnell school on East Fourth street where a movie projector, technicolor film, and four empty reels valued at $63 were stolen. Entrance was gained by breaking the glass in a side door, police said.

Burglars who entered through the unlocked front door at the James Moore home, 267 Park avenue east, took a woman's purse and a man's billfold containing about $35.

Approximately $10 in nickels from a phonograph was obtained at the Liberty park shelter house where a window was pried open. The bath house also was broken into and ransacked, but nothing was reported missing there.

At Scotty's supper club on the Ashland road the cash register was torn apart by burglars who overlooked $3 in change in a drawer and were unsuccessful in their attempts to get money from a phonograph, Deputy Sheriff Glenn Freeman said. A screen door at the back of the building was cut to permit access to the lock on another door.

A. D. Mack, 122 East Temple court, told police he heard someone raise the bathroom window in his home shortly after 2 a. m. today and saw a tall man run across the back yard as he went to the window to investigate.

Officers were checking fingerprints obtained at most of the burglary scenes.

TAKES MESSAGE

Davies To Carry FDR Letter For Stalin To Moscow.

WASHINGTON— (U.P.) —President Roosevelt announced officially today that former Ambassador Joseph E. Davies is going to Moscow with a special message from the chief executive to Premier Joseph Stalin of the Soviet union.

Mr. Roosevelt cut off all press conference questions about the content of the message, even declining to say whether it called for a reply. It has been understood that the message probably would propose a meeting between the president and Stalin.

Mr. Roosevelt said Davies, who was ambassador to the Soviet union from 1936 to 1938, would leave almost immediately and would not be gone long. He also said that Davies himself did not know the content of the letter which he was carrying to Stalin.

The position had been held by Freeman, who will continue to head the board.

A new panel for price control has been set up with George Koch as chairman; Harry Brubaker and Mrs. L. N. Hoffman. Mrs. Ray Baer will be the clerk for the board.

GET MORE TIME FOR PETITIONS

Landlords Given 45 More Days To Apply For Review of Cases.

Mansfield landlords, along with those in seven northern Ohio cities, today were given an additional 45 days in which to file applications for review of denied petitions, according to a Cleveland order received by the local rent control board.

Area Director Lester Redding, while admitting that the time extension affected "some" local petitioners, failed to mention the number explaining that the figures varied from day to day.

Such applications previously had to be filed within 15 days after a petitioner's denial, while under the extension the period has been lengthened to 60 days. Redding said experience had shown that the 15-day period was not ample to gather and submit additional material supporing an adjustment petition which had been denied.

THREE DRIVERS GIVEN FINES

Two of Them Draw Penalties In Muny Court Following Traffic Mishaps.

Three Mansfield drivers, two of whom were involved in traffic accidents, were fined today in municipal court after pleading guilty to charges filed by police. Fines in two cases were suspended on condition the drivers pay damages.

Pleading guilty to a charge of permitting a minor to drive his car, Earl Knipp, Mansfield, R. D. 3, was fined $50 and costs by Judge H. H. Schettler who suspended the fine and ordered Knipp to pay for the damage to the home of W. J. Thomas, 545 Lida street. Knipp's car, operated by Clifton Dickerson, 17, of 542 Lida street, crashed into the house yesterday afternoon, police said.

Mrs. Mary K. Au, 203 Coul street, pleaded guilty to a charge of driving with a temporary permit and without a licensed driver with her, and was fined $5 and costs. Her car was involved in a minor mishap yesterday. The fine was suspended on condition she pay for the repairs to a second car involved in the collision.

Jack Theohar, 835 Bowman street, pleaded guilty to a speeding charge and was fined $10 and costs. He was arrested by police about 8:30 a. m., and was in court an hour later.

HOUSE TO GET POLL TAX BILL

Representatives Sign Petition Releasing Buried Measure.

WASHINGTON—(UP)—An anti-poll tax measure today was ready for house debate on May 24 after 218 representatives signed a petition for release of the measure from committee.

Rep. George Bender, R., O., who made the announcement, said the poll tax bill had been "bottled up" in the house judiciary committee.

The petition, circulated jointly by the sponsors of five similar house bills, would discharge from the rules committee a resolution by Rep. Vito Marcantonio, ALP, N. Y., providing for house consideration under two-hour debate of the poll tax measure, Benders said.

Warns Restaurant Operators to File Ceiling Prices

Mansfield restaurant operators who have not yet filed their ceiling price lists which were due May 1 may be asked to appear before the price panel to make explanation, Ration Chairman C. C. Beelman warned today. Some processed food retailers are delinquent, too, in filing certified point checks with the board, he said.

Office of Price Administration orders required that menus, used between April 4-10, together with price schedules be filed with the board and that menus and price lists since that date be kept in duplicate in the institutions, subject to periodic OPA inspection.

OPA orders required that retailers whose point inventory, filed in March, showed more points than allowed, should file certified checks for the points advanced by the ration board. Many have failed to comply to date, Beelman said.

Retailers may call at the Mansfield postoffice for new charts on processed foods and meats.

THEY HAVE Earned IT

YOUR fellow-townsmen, the employees of The Hughes-Keenan Company, have added another flag to their pole, to support the Stars and Stripes at the top. They earned the Treasury flag for putting 10% of their pay into War Bonds. Today they raise their new Army-Navy "E" pennant. They got it by doing more work more efficiently than is regarded as "good enough" in peacetime. They did it because their country asked it of them—and because they remembered their boys, who are doing so much more than they ever can, far away in North Africa, Guadalcanal, Iceland, Alaska and on death-haunted oceans everywhere. "For great accomplishment in the production of war equipment," said Robert P. Patterson, Under Secretary of War, in his letter announcing the award. The reply of Hughes-Keenan men and women is that we "have not yet begun to fight."

STATEMENTS BY COMPANY, UNION LAUD HARMONY

Employer and Employe Accord Aided In Obtaining High Award, Officers Agree.

Employe-employer co-operation the Hughes-Keenan plant made possible the Army-Navy production award, according to statements of both management and labor.

One hundred-twenty of the 180 employes of the firm are members of Pioneer lodge No. 1, an independent union formed almost two years ago with 44 charter members.

W. E. Post, vice president and general manager, reiterated his expression of ideal relations in speaking in behalf of company officials.

"We are quite proud of being honored by the award," Post said, "and we know that this was made possible only through the efficient work of our employes. We are equally proud of the relations that exist between employes and management.

"We are all 'employes,' each doing his or her part in the office and shop to make an early victory possible."

Alden Hesselden, union president, not only praised company relations, but the safety program both the union and management have sponsored, "Working conditions have been improved and all types of accidents reduced," he said.

"Constant strides are being made to better working conditions still further with progress along these lines deeply appreciated by all employes."

A general wage scale was negotiated soon after the union's formation, Hesselden recounted, with two others having been effected in the past 14 months.

Employes of the company, who have worked more than 30 days are eligible for union membership, regardless of their skill. Although all employes thus qualified are invited to membership, no "high pressure" methods are used to force it, Hesselden said.

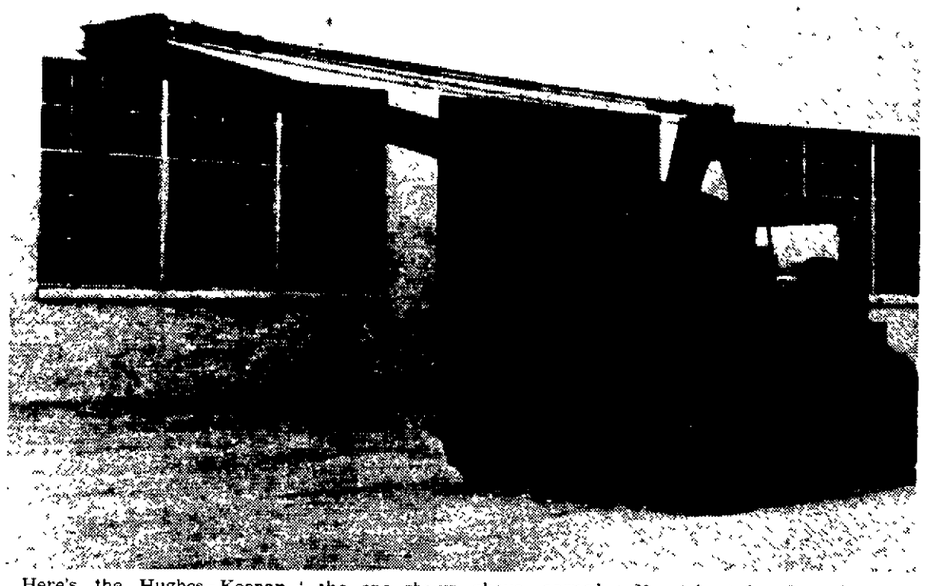
Lodge meetings are held the second and last Friday nights of each month in the Eagles hall with occasional suppers and a picnic for families each summer. An entrance fee of $2 is charged with $1 monthly dues, Hesselden explained.

Present officers, besides Hesselden, are: L. W. Shaffer, vice president; Ernest Hall, secretary and Albert Efird, chief job steward. James E. Warrack, as treasurer, was the only officer retained from last year's organization.

Officers during the first year of the union were: Bernard A. Shark, president; William A. Harter, vice president; Arsene Breuninger, secretary and Warrack, treasurer. The lodge was founded July 19, 1941.

Both Hesselden and Post voiced the common desire that new stars, designating continued meritorius service, may be added to the Army-Navy penant which the company receives today.

Here's the Hughes-Keenan 'Roustabout'



Here's the Hughes-Keenan company's contribution to the nation's battle for freedom. Quality and quantity production of Roustabout cranes, like the one shown above, earned the Army-Navy "E" award for the Mansfield firm. Used by the army and navy at supply bases in every part of the world, the Roustabout has been in quantity production in Mansfield since 1940. The Hughes-Keenan output now goes entirely into the war program. The Roustabout is made in a number of sizes and is mounted on crawlers or heavy truck bodies.

CONSTRUCTION DECLINE SEEN

But Building Men Believe That It Will Be Better Than Normal In '43.

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND — Construction outlook for 1943 is predicted to be "far below the 1942 volume, but better than normal," according to the combined opinions of three officials of the H. K. Ferguson Co., industrial engineers and builders.

President Harold K. Ferguson believes that emphasis will be placed on jobs costing less than a million dollars, although there will probably be a few new plants in al industries.

Contracts are expected for plant expansions and additions rather than entirely new plants.

A big problem, in the opinion of C. A. Harwick, vice president in charge of engineering, is holding onto the companies' organizations. The first nine months of 1943 will probably be devoted to opening up bottlenecks in war productions.

Requirements as to kind and types of munitions and material needed in the war effort will govern construction in the last three months of the year. At that time, building will be devoted mainly to providing facilities for manufacturing newer types and models of war machinery, after a peak production has been reached.

J. Stuart Sneddon, vice president in charge of construction, says that the construction industry is in a state of transition, the first phase finding the company in preparation for the war, and the 1943, or second phase, has the government taking inventory of the war situation in an effort to determine just how much production capacity will be necessary for supplying our army now and at the time it reaches full strength.

ARMY-NAVY 'E' PRESENTED TO OLDEST EMPLOYE

J. S. Gerhart, 70, One of Two Receiving Coveted Honor in Behalf of Plant.

When Major W. B. McClelland of the Cleveland ordnance district presents the Army-Navy "E" flag to the Hughes-Keenan company today, the award will be received by J. S. Gerhart who at 70 is the oldest employe of the plant and one of the oldest in years of service.

Gerhart, receiving the award jointly with Miss Marie Jacot, company secretary, came to the Hughes-Keenan plant late in 1909. Experienced in structural and ornamental steel work, his first construction job was at the F. E. Myers Bros. company at Ashland.

He next became associated with the sales department, and was "on the road" for 25 years. He's in the maintenance department now, a job not new to Gerhart. In the plant's early days he would come in from his selling trips and help with the maintenance work.

Among the many jobs which he has done at the Hughes-Keenan plant, Gerhart lists installing the first set of steel stairs in Ohio. When a building needed to be moved, Gerhart went to Newport, Ky., to help tear down, move and reconstruct the building into the No. 2 building at the plant, here. The coming of the war and the change to defense work necessitated the changing of some of the machinery and much of this work fell to him.

Gerhart is a baseball enthusiast and several members of the old Mansfield Braves roomed at his home at 116 Pleasant avenue. He has two daughters and two sons, all married and away from home, and two grandsons in the service. He came to Mansfield in 1884 from Cumberland county, Pennsylvania.

Receives Hughes-Keenan 'E'

J. S. Gerhart, above, who at 70 is the oldest employe of the Hughes-Keenan plant, will receive the Army-Navy "E" flag at the presentation today. He will receive the award jointly with Miss Marie Jacot, company secretary.

SERVICE RECORD LONGEST AT H-K

Oscar F. Schaller, Treasurer Now, Started With Plant Back In Early Days.

Oscar F. Schaller, treasurer and purchasing agent of the Hughes-Keenan company who with 180 others at the plant will receive an Army-Navy "E" button today, can remember the plant's early days 34 years ago when the ten employes doubled on estimating jobs, getting the material and producing the goods.

In 1909, just five years after founding of the company, Schaller became a timekeeper at Hughes-Keenan, and is the oldest employe from point of service. The plant then was located at the rear of 26 West Sixth street and employed less than a dozen men. It had just been incorporated and was getting away from repair work and into structural steel work.

"There was no separate office then and I did everything in the way of general office work, even did some estimating of jobs before we got an engineering department," Schaller reminisced.

During the time the plant was on Sixth street and after an office was set up on Mulberry, Schaller did bookkeeping, collecting, and any job he was called on to do.

With Company for 34 Years

To Oscar F. Schaller, treasurer and purchasing agent of the Hughes-Keenan company, one of the highlights of his 34 years with the company will be the receiving of his Army-Navy "E" button this afternoon. Schaller came to Hughes-Keenan in 1909, five years after the company was formed. He has served in many capacities from timekeeper to treasurer.

He remembers that as the staff grew each new employe would take over one of the jobs he had been doing and he would go on to something new. That's the way he "grew into" the position of purchasing agent which he had when the company moved to its present location on Newman street. That was in 1921 and he's still working at that job.

As purchasing agent, it has been Schaller's job to get the material to the plant to be used in manufacturing. In war time, that's no easy job with priorities and such problems as material shortages to cope with.

But keeping the purchasing department running smoothly was Schaller's contribution toward the effort which won the plant the Army-Navy "E."

Schaller became treasurer of the company in 1941.

Schaller is a native of Mansfield and makes his home at 274 South Mulberry street.

Timber is provided by two great classes of trees, conifers, the soft woods, and dicotyledons, the hardwoods.

CONDUCT STAHL RITES MONDAY

BUCYRUS — Funeral services will be held at 9 a. m. Monday at Holy Trinity Catholic church for George L. Stahl, 71, who died in City hospital Thursday. Burial will be in the Catholic cemetery.

Born in Germany, Mr. Stahl came to this country at the age of 20 and has made his home here since. He was a retired machinist.

Survivors include the following children, Miss Margaret Stahl at home; Mrs. Chester Metzger of Detroit; Donald Stahl of Ft. Riley, Kans.; Mrs. James Milam, Lawrence, Clements and Carl Stahl of Bucyrus.

PARENTS OF SON

GALION—Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ness, 731 Harding Way west, are the parents of a son born Thursday at City hospital.

JAPS INTERNED IN UTAH CITY

Relocation Center Houses 8,500 Nipponese From California.

(By International News Service)

TOPAZ, Utah—Only a year ago historic Pahvant Valley, which lies 165 miles southwest of Salt Lake City, was used for winter pasturage for flocks of sheep.

Then Topaz was born — built by the United States Army to house Japanese evacuees from the Pacific Coast. Today the community ranks sixth in size in the state, with a Japanese population of 8,500.

The valley, located near the Confusion mountains, had been classed as unproductive but was selected as a relocation center when population areas protested against Japanese infiltration.

Late last summer 500 one-story barracks had been built and on Sept. 10 the first Japanese moved in. A month later a new city had been established.

Most of the population came from the bay district of California with the result that only 7 per cent of the settlers had been engaged in agriculture.

Among them is a university art professor, doctors, dentists, a nurseryman and prosperous San Francisco Chinatown merchants.

Topaz is affected by the contingencies of war, like the rest of America. The community faces shortages every day. It consumes about 17,000 pounds of meat a week or about two pounds per person. Rice is the major food. There are meatless days and days with few vegetables, but always enough to eat.

Japanese who have no means can obtain jobs at the rate of $12, $16, and $19 a month. Thirty-five mess halls must be maintained, the community must be kept clean, a 175-bed hospital must be staffed and 700 acres of fair farming land must be made to produce a good part of the food that will be consumed in the camp next year.

GETS LETTERS

AUSTIN, Tex.—(U P)—Added significance was given to the University of Texas' part in celebrating the centennial anniversary of Sidney Lanier when six of the poet's unpublished original letters were given to the school's rare book collection. The letters were donated by H. J. Lutcher Stark, regent.

Stark acquired the letters from W. S. James of Abilene, Tex., nephew of Col. John Garland James, who carried on a correspondence with Lanier about writing a textbook.

Plates of 1,500 Books to Make Tons of Scrap

PHILADELPHIA — (U P) — Words, from aardvark to zymurgy, will write out a message containing nothing but bad news for Hitler and Hirohito in the near future.

The words, engraved on plates of steel, lead, copper and zinc, will be converted into bombs and shells to bring a message to the Axis leaders in the only language they understand, death and destruction.

Through the salvage efforts of the J. B. Lippincott company, a Philadelphia publishing firm celebrating its 150th anniversary, the plates of some 1,500 books will be turned over to the government for conversion into the sinews of war.

S. Austin Allibone, when he wrote his Dictionary of English Literature in the early 1800's probably never dreamed that, a hundred years later, his scholarly words would scream out of the skies with a message of death — but the copper plates of his book are going into shells.

New York is only 1,605 miles farther from Tokyo than San Francisco by air.

'ROUSTABOUTS' DOING BIG JOB ON WAR FRONTS

Hughes-Keenan Cranes Go To Far Corners of Earth To Help Victory Drive.

The lumbering Roustabout crane, which won the Army-Navy "E" award for the Hughes-Keenan company, has carried the Mansfield's firm's name to every part of the world where American forces have established bases.

The big machines are lifting building materials and army and navy equipment in North Africa, the Southwest Pacific, India, and in other far corners of the world from which the Yanks may launch their victory drive.

The Roustabout has been a Hughes-Keenan trade name only since 1930, but the firm has built cranes for the past 17 years. In 1931, the army purchased its first Roustabout and since then the government has been buying an increasing number of the big lifting devices.

Now, the entire output of the company is going into government use, either directly to the army and navy or to other firms which are producing for the war program. Production of Roustabouts was started on a large scale in 1941.

W. E. Post, vice president and general manager of the Hughes-Keenan company, said most of the cranes probably are used primarily at air force supply depots. The huge machines, which have been known to lift up to 27,000 pounds, put heavy building materials in place, move bomber parts, and sometimes help to drag heavy army equipment out of the mud.

Roustabouts models vary in lifting capacity from two to seven tons, but they can lift a bigger load than that. The Mansfield firm manufactures only the lifting mechanism of the crane. The company mounts the cranes on caterpillar-type tractors or industrial wheel chassis equipped with rubber tires and ships the complete unit from Mansfield.

Working with the Hughes-Keenan firm in the production of the unit are the International Harvester company, J. I. Case company and Allis-Chalmers. They make the chassis and motors.

Before the Hughes-Keenan company began making industrial cranes, the firm turned out ornamental fence, boiler equipment, structural steel equipment, and dump bodies for trucks. The portable crane proved so popular, however, that production gradually turned away from other lines until the cranes made up the total output of the company.

PERMIT SLACKS IN COLLEGE

TROY, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Russell Sage college girls have their own solution to the fuel oil heating problem. The college legislative council has O. K'd a plan whereby the girls will be permitted to wear woolen slacks and ski pants on the campus and in class.

Executives of Hughes-Keenan Company

Executives of the Hughes-Keenan company which Mansfield honors today for its contribution to the war effort share with their employes the credit for bringing Mansfield its first Army-Navy "E" award. Pictured above are: 1—W. E. Post, vice president and general manager; 2—O. F. Schaller, treasurer; 3—G. W. Way, president; 4—W. L. Oswalt, resident army inspector of ordnance at the plant and a captain in the 97th ordnance unit in the first World war; 5—Miss Marie Jacot, secretary; 6—H. J. Nelson, factory manager.

SOLDIERS TRY IRISH DANCES

Then They Show Gay Colleens The American Way to Trip Fantastic.

(By International News Service)

LONDONDERRY—New dances for old. Irish steps in exchange for American "square" dances. A novel sort of British-American lease-lend in a light fantastic setting.

That is the latest hospitality craze at the American Red Cross Service Club, Londonderry, where "give and get" dance classes are flourishing with the slogan "fair exchange is no robbery"—and the prospect of piles of fun.

Two Pennsylvania women thought up the idea—Miss Sylvia Derr, program director, and Miss Helen Cantrell, social director, and the G.Is. and their colleens are putting plenty of pep into their practices.

While the colleens are learning to "swing on your partner like swinging on a gate" the Yanks are attempting the intracacies of Irish reels, hornpipes, jigs and set-dances. The club's fine dance hall looks like a "hooley" in an Irish kitchen when the lads and lassies get going heel-and-toe.

To help her learners along Miss Deer has "figured out" both the American and Irish dances on special cards with the instructions for steps set in the form of verses to the air of current song hits, which the dancers can lilt or sing as they "circle" and "chain," "swing" and "reel" on the arms of their partners.

By turn American soldiers, sailors and marines teach their Irish girls "Dosey Do" and "Birdie in the Cage" and are taught by the girls the steps that go with the lilt of "The Pride of Erin" or the rollicking tunes for "The Lancers."

Boys and girls took it all in the day's play and in next to no time were swinging through the unfamiliar steps—as if colleens had all their lives "hit him on the wing with an elbow swing" or Yanks had pivoted to the strains of "The Irish Washerwoman."

It is not only hands-across-sea but also feet-across-the-sea at Londonderry now. Soon they'll all be experts up at the base for the lease-lend dancing classes are to continue every Sunday—at least until Miss Derr has made her dancers thoroughly "international."

The name of Alaska was derived from an Aleut word meaning "great country."

Kalbfleisch Presides Over Army-Navy 'E' Presentation

Master of ceremonies at this afternoon's ceremonies at the Hughes-Keenan company plant, when the company and employes were to be awarded the Army-Navy "E" for production was Common Pleas Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch.

Kalbfleisch also holds the post of co-ordinator of civilian defense for both Mansfield and Richland county.

He moved to the common pleas bench early this year from municipal court, where he had served two terms. He was also formerly county prosecutor.

In his capacity of civilian defense co-ordinator, Kalbfleisch has directed the CD organization since its inception.

He was to preside over this afternoon's ceremonies and introduce the speakers.

Warns Against 'Bargain' Gifts To Servicemen

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — (U.P.)—Jewelry racketeers are finding a rich harvest among wartime brides and grooms and the gift-buying relatives of men in the armed services, the family economies bureau of the Northwestern National Life Insurance company warned today.

"Relatives buy gift watches that are soon thousands of miles away on the wrists of soldiers or sailors," the bureau reported, "and although the watch is a poor one, there is little chance of its coming back to the seller.

"Nothing is easier to fool the public on than diamonds and watches. A sharper can easily misrepresent shoddy goods and 'out-promise' the honest jeweler who stands behind his merchandise."

The bureau warned against the "perfect blue-write" stone or watch offered by an unknown dealer or salesman.

WINS PROMOTION

SAN DIEGO, Cal.—(U.P.)—Sgt. James Jolly Plum Duff, Marine base bulldog mascot, celebrated his sixth birthday by being promoted to the rank of platoon sergeant.

A cake was baked for the occasion with six wieners instead of candles. Duff was presented to the Marines several years ago by Mr. and Mrs. Frederick James of Philadelphia.

STILL PRIVATE

FORT MYERS, Fla.—(U.P.)—When Bernard Galkin was a civilian he wrote a book telling how to get a rating or a commission in the army, navy, marines, coast guard and merchant marine. It sold more than 75,000 copies.

Glakin has been in the army several months now and he's still waiting to be promoted from private. He is stationed at the Army Air Forces Flexible Gunnery school here.
